

COUNTY SHOULD AID GRADY, SAYS MADDOX

Alderman Who Is Candidate for County Board Urges
Help for Hospital

Alderman J. W. Maddox of the Fifth ward, who is a candidate for county commissioner, believes Fulton county should help the city of Atlanta enlarge Grady hospital and help the city maintain it.

Mr. Maddox's ideas are in agreement with a suggestion contained in an editorial in the Journal yesterday, and he says if elected he will advocate a liberal appropriation by the county for the purpose above stated.

Notwithstanding the large annex to Grady hospital completed last year, the facilities of the hospital are inadequate to accommodate the public, so rapid has been Atlanta's growth. The hospital has no nurses' dormitory, which is just as essentially a part of a hospital as the operating room. The general facilities of the hospital should be enlarged, such as more nurses, a department for contagious diseases, more pay wards, etc. These needs have been brought to the attention of the public repeatedly, and are well-known.

As Mr. Maddox points out, the city on its present tax rate cannot spare the money to give Grady hospital what it needs, unless there should be a bond issue, and this is not in sight. So Mr. Maddox proposes that the county meet the situation. He says:

"Now that the new court house has been finished, the strain on the county's finances should ease up. The city wants to increase and improve Grady hospital, but hasn't got the money. The county needs a hospital to accommodate the people who live in the county outside of the city limits. It seems to me the city and the county could well combine their funds to meet the situation."

"I have discussed my idea with Dr. Summerville, superintendent of Grady hospital, and he favors it heartily. He spoke of a number of cities the size of Atlanta where the city and county governments contribute jointly to the maintenance of the municipal hospital. He says Grady hospital now gives all the accommodation to Fulton county people, living outside the city, that it can."

"In the county are a number of towns which have no hospital, such as Marietta, College Park, East Point, Lakewood Heights, Bolton, Whitaker Mills, Center Hill, Buckhead, etc. The county has no hospital facilities for its convicts."

"My idea is that the county could help the city enlarge and improve Grady hospital's facilities, making it large enough to accommodate the whole county and then help the city maintain the hospital. I am satisfied the details could be worked out in a manner satisfactory to all parties."

BELIEVERS IN BIBLE FORM

CHRISTIAN BIBLE LEAGUE

Will Call to Account Ministers

Who Deny the Faith

The American Bible society has reported that sales and gifts of Bibles, New Testaments and Scripture portions during 1913 amounted to 1,075,450 volumes, an increase of 250,000 volumes over 1912. This is the largest distribution of Bibles ever made by the society in the United States, yet it does not include sales to the trade or Bibles distributed by auxiliary societies.

The society is making preparations to celebrate in 1915 the one hundredth anniversary of its founding.

Believers in the Bible as it is, and opponents of the higher criticism, are forming Christian Bible leagues in a number of the leading cities. They expect to call to account immediately any minister whom they think denies the faith, and commit heresy.

Charged with the duty of making challenges, are being named. The recent prompt response to statements of Rev. Dr. Charles E. Aked, of San Francisco, who denied the virgin birth, was part of the plan.

In Toronto and Los Angeles committees of one hundred have been fully organized, and in Boston, Pittsburgh and New York they have been partly completed. Preliminary steps toward organization have been taken in Chicago, Cleveland, Cincinnati, Philadelphia and Baltimore.

The promoter of this plan is the Bible league of North America, with headquarters in New York and Toronto. It is not a new body, but it has been reorganized recently with new strength in members and finances.

CHARTER FOR CUMMING

AND NORCROSS R. R. CO.

Secretary of State Philip Cook Saturday morning issued a charter to the Cumming and Norcross Railroad company. This company will have its principal offices in Cumming, Forsyth county, and will be capitalized at $250,000.

It proposes to build a line of railroad approximately twenty-two miles in length from Cumming to Norcross. This line will traverse portions of three counties, namely, Forsyth, Milton and Gwinnett. Two of these counties—Forsyth and Milton—are now without any railroads.

The list of incorporators includes many prominent citizens of Forsyth and Gwinnett counties, among them being S. H. Allen, G. W. Heard, C. E. Ottwell, J. R. McKelvey and E. E. Brannon.

STATE EXAMINATION OF

TEACHERS JUNE 12-13

A circular letter containing much information of interest to Georgia school teachers is being mailed out to county school superintendents by State Superintendent M. L. Brittain. It is announced in this circular that the regular state examination of teachers will take place on Friday and Saturday, June 12 and 13.

Attention is also called to the fact that the meeting of the County School Officials' association will be held this year at St. Mary's on May 4, 5 and 6, and that the Georgia Teachers' association will meet in Macon on April 23, 24 and 25.

Billboards have been emblazoned for weeks past with posters announcing the coming of the noted suffrage workers and automobiles have been brought into requisition for a tour of the city and the distribution of announcement cards.

THREE COMMISSIONERS

WANT MORE POLICEMEN

Will Endeavor to Get Forty

Added to Force to Protect Residential Section

Three members of the board of police commissioners, after a conference at police headquarters on Saturday night, pledged themselves to work towards an increase of the police department of at least forty men.

The three members of the board, W. P. Fain, George Johnson and Andy King, will introduce a resolution at the next meeting of the board asking for the increase, and will then start using their influence to get the measure through council.

The residential section cannot be given the proper protection unless the increase in the department is made.

Mr. Johnson declared after the conference at which Chief Beavers and Chief Lanford were both present. If the additional men are secured, according to Mr. Johnson, they will be scattered through the several departments.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

KNOWN FAR AND WIDE

The Atlanta chamber of commerce, and particularly the industrial and statistical bureau of the chamber, is making itself known. Letters are continually coming in asking for information about the methods of the bureau, and these communications are from all parts of the country. The two latest are from Portland, Me., and New Britain, Conn. The former states that the Portland chamber of commerce has heard of the splendid work being done by the Atlanta chamber and asks for complete information as to its ways and means.

The Connecticut letter is similar. It says that Atlanta's chamber is one of the most progressive in America and requests an outline of its plan of work.

Diamond Robbery

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., March 9.—The robbery of diamonds to the value of over $5,000 from the residence of Colonel E. C. Long, a former railroad developer of Florida, was reported to the local police here last night. Some of the gems are said to be of a historic value.

The robbery was committed during the absence from the home for fifteen minutes or more of the Long family and servants last evening.

ALLEGED NEGRO ROBBER

GIVEN A NEW TRIAL

Sam Reid, a negro convicted in November for robbery, as the result of an attack by highwaymen on Frank Hooper, the attorney, who was associated with the state in the Frank prosecution, was granted a new trial by Judge Ben H. Hill Saturday on motion of Attorney Bernard L. Chappell.

Reid was convicted with another negro and both were sentenced to twenty years in the penitentiary. The other man got a new trial some time ago, and proved he was in the chain gang at the time Mr. Hooper was robbed.

A large audience is assured, formed not only of enthusiastic exponents of the cause but of many others who will go simply to hear the speeches of Miss Addams and the other women.

While Dr. Anna Howard Shaw will be prevented from attending by an accident and will be sorely missed, the rally will be the largest this section of the country has ever seen.

The three presidents of the local suffrage leagues, Mrs. Mary L. McLendon of the Atlanta Equal Suffrage association; Mrs. Emily C. McDougald, of the Eighth Ward league, and Mrs. Frances S. Whitelaw, of the Woman's Suffrage league, will occupy seats on the platform, with other suffrage leaders, both men and women.

The visitors are all high in national suffrage councils, most of them being members of the national board. They are making a tour of the southern states, holding a rally in Birmingham just previous to the Atlanta visit.

They are expected to arrive here Wednesday morning. Extensive plans for their entertainment have been made, but all are overshadowed by the big meeting at the theater.

FIRM STAND IS URGED IN BATTLE WITH EVIL

That the church is the target for all lawlessness and must make a firm defense if the forces of sin are to be combated, was statement of Dr. H. M. DuBose in his Sunday night sermon at the First Methodist church on the subject "A Successful Stand."

He said in part: "Drink, lust, materialism with the other united forces of sin, hold emmity only against the church, which is to say, against those who would enthrone Christ as king and would make His law the law of the world. Against lawlessness, the church alone must stand always."

MISS GERTRUDE WALDEMAR SAYS
CHILDREN WILL BE HELPED
LARGELY THROUGH SUFFRAGE

Predicting a national law against child labor, to be gained largely through woman's suffrage, Miss Gertrude Waldemar, of New York City, spoke at the Wesley Memorial church Sunday afternoon under the auspices of the Atlanta Equal Suffrage association.

Miss Waldemar was on her way to Florida to attend a chautauqua, but was persuaded to stop here long enough to deliver an address on the child labor problem, which she has made a close study of for years.

Other speakers were prominent labor leaders of Atlanta and members of the three local suffrage associations. Speaking for Georgia suffragists, Mrs. Mary L. McLendon pledged the support of their organization to organized labor in the battle against child labor.

RESOLUTIONS PRESENTED ON LOCKER CLUB QUESTION

Congregation of First Baptist Church Will Take Final Action Wednesday Night

Resolutions prepared by the board of deacons of the First Baptist church were read during the morning service in that church Sunday by Rev. C. W. Daniel, the pastor, and were deferred to be acted upon at an adjourned meeting of the congregation Wednesday night. If they are adopted, then they will put squarely up to every member of the church who is also a member of any locker club the issue of exerting his influence within the club to make it law-abiding (if it is not), or to sever his connection with it.

Other than reading the resolutions, Dr. Daniel did not touch on the liquor or locker club question. He devoted his sermon to the topic, "The Inseparable Love of God."

The resolutions were printed, with a history of their drafting, upon the back of the church calendar for the week, and in that form will reach all members of the congregation who were not present Sunday.

RESOLUTIONS IN FULL.
Following are the resolutions:

"Whereas, The character and standing of a church are involved in and determined by the conduct of its own members; and

"Whereas, Voluntary membership in an organization places upon one the moral responsibility for the purposes and conduct of the same; and

"Whereas, This church regards the traffic in and the use of alcoholic beverages, whether with or without the sanction of the law, as against public morals and opposed to the progress of the gospel of Christ; therefore be it

"Resolved (1) That it is incompatible with the principles and purposes of this church for its members to be identified with organizations which derive revenue for their maintenance from the sale of alcoholic beverages;

"(2) That, recognizing the place and value of social and commercial clubs in the life of the city, this church urges upon those of its members who are connected with such clubs the duty and opportunity of using their influence therein toward eliminating from the same any unlawful features that may obtain;

"(3) That in the event of the failure of such efforts to bring about these needed reforms in the club life of the city, the members of this church should promptly sever all connection with such clubs."

DR. WALKER ANNOUNCES CALL TO LONG BEACH

Pastor of First Presbyterian Church Believes He Can Do Greater Good by Change

At the morning services of the First Presbyterian church Sunday Rev. Hugh K. Walker, the pastor, announced that he had decided to accept the call of the First Presbyterian church at Long Beach, Cal., and requested that his congregation join him in a petition to the Atlanta presbytery for a dissolution of the pastoral relations existing between himself and his church here.

A congregational meeting of the church will be held next Sunday morning to take action upon Dr. Walker's request and should it be decided to ask for the severance of the pastoral relations a special meeting of the Atlanta presbytery will be called to consider the matter.

In announcing his decision, Dr. Walker feelingly referred to his work here. He said that during the fourteen years of his pastorate at Los Angeles the climate of southern California had been very beneficial to Mrs. Walker's health, and that while he felt it would be to her advantage to return there this was not the controlling motive which had decided him to accept the Long Beach call. He declared that he had been sincerely convinced that he could be of greater service in God's work out on the Pacific coast than in Atlanta, notwithstanding his life here had been exceedingly pleasant.

Dr. Walker paid a high tribute to the local church and its membership and urged that it go forward with its plans to move the church to Sixteenth and Peachtree streets.

The Long Beach church has a membership of 1,000 and a church building which cost more than $100,000.

COUPLE GETS MARRIED AND SURPRISE FRIENDS

Clifford Baisden and Miss Mina White Also Give Best Man Surprise

Too impatient to await the date of their wedding, which was set for some time in May, Clifford J. Baisden and Miss Mina J. White, of West End, Monday surprised all their friends by quietly getting married. Nobody was present but the couple, the minister and a close friend of the groom's, and nobody knew of it in advance except the friend, Mr. Aubrey Milam.

Mr. Baisden called up Mr. Milam and told him that the wedding was going to take place in a very short while at the First Baptist church, and for him to come and be best man. That was the first Mr. Milam had heard of it, but he went. As soon as the party had assembled Dr. C. W. Daniel performed the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Baisden left for New York, and left it to Mr. Milam to break the news to friends of both.

The groom is a member of the firm of C. J. Baisden & Co. and is a Shriner and an Elk.

The affair was strictly informal, much to the discomfort of J. L. Barnes, J. P. Letton, H. N. Dutton, Lee M. Jordan and Fred Houser, who arrived on time with long-winded speeches in their systems. The feat of riding "Balaam," shown on the right, doing the tango in its fifty-seven varieties, and other evolutions of the terpsichorean art, precluded even the remotest possibility of a speaker venturing to assume the attitude of the after-dinner monopolist.

ASSOCIATION TO TELL OF FIGHT ON TUBERCULOSIS

Fifth Annual Meeting Finds Much Telling Work Done

A splendid showing of work done and results accomplished despite meager financial support, will be made at the fifth annual meeting of the Atlanta Anti-Tuberculosis and Visiting Nurse association, which will be held at the Carnegie library next Thursday, March 12, at 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

The association has waged its campaign in Atlanta now for a period of six years, and interesting information will be given relative to the progress made within that time.

President Hugh M. Willet, of the association, will give a general summary of the work accomplished in the battle against tuberculosis in Atlanta, and his report will be supplemented by statements from the financial, educational, medical and relief departments.

An interesting feature will be a statement by the superintendent of the Battehill sanatorium as to the relation between that institution and the association, and showing the relative functions of each.

The state tuberculosis sanatorium at Alto, and its relations to local organizations, will be discussed by Dr. Parramore, superintendent of the state sanatorium.

Mr. F. G. Hodgson, president of the Raoul Foundation, will report on the work done under this branch, and the summing up of the situation and the outlook for the current year will be presented by Kendall Weisiger, of the executive committee. The annual election of officers will also be a feature of the meeting.

The meeting is not confined merely to members of the association, but a cordial invitation to be present is extended to all persons who are interested in the fight against tuberculosis.

GREEK WAR PICTURE TO BE SHOWN IN ATLANTA

Said to Be Only Real Picture of Modern Warfare

What is said to be one of the most interesting motion picture films that ever has come to Atlanta will be shown next Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday at the Grand theater. It is called "With the Greeks on the Firing Line," and depicts actual scenes taken on many a bloody battle field of the Greco-Bulgarian war.

It is claimed that this is the only real picture of modern warfare ever started since the invention of cinematography. None of the pictures is posed, but all show war as it really is, cavalry charges, infantry storming a height, the teeth of sharpshooters with the dead and wounded plainly visible in the picture as they topple over, a bayonet rush, artillery in action, the Red Cross at work, a camp being shelled, and views of camp and field ravaged by the enemy.

The operator who took the pictures risked his life daily, and declares he is willing to give $50,000 to anybody that can prove a single part of them is faked.

GOD DOESN'T RELY ON JURIES, SAYS PASTOR

In his sermon Sunday morning on the subject "God's Prohibition Law in Eden," Dr. A. R. Holderby, pastor of Moore Memorial church, said: "The prohibition law enacted by the Georgia legislature is God's law and not man's, and the man who violates that law has as much guilt as Adam and Eve, and he will be sure to receive the punishment whether a grand jury returns a true bill or not. God is not dependent upon the grand jury."

Friends of Telephone Manager Glad to Know He Will Soon Be Out Again

The many friends of M. O. Jackson, manager of the Southern Bell Telephone company, are pleased to learn that he is recovering from a severe illness and will soon be able to leave the hospital for his Myrtle street home.

JURY OF PHYSICIANS BRIGHT'S DISEASE

"They were not genuine cases of Bright's Disease." Then how about cases like this?—

E. C. Fell, cor. Broadway and Battery Sts., is the manager of one of San Francisco's big corporations. His son had Bright's Disease. He called two physicians, one of them an Army surgeon, and the other a patient swollen with dropsy. The doctors declared the case incurable. The father thereupon ordered Fulton's Renal Compound administered. Patient began to mend and in six months was so well his father could hardly credit it and had two other physicians examine the patient and analyze samples. Both reported normal.

Thus a jury of physicians decided the patient had Bright's Disease and was incurable and another jury of physicians later determined his recovery. As to permanence, this was nine years ago and patient is in business in San Francisco at this writing. (Feb. 1914.)

The ability of Fulton's Renal Compound to reduce albumen in many cases of Bright's Disease is not a matter of opinion but a FACT IN PHYSICS and we will mail formula for albumen test that will show the percentage from week to week. As the albumen declines improvement commonly follows, recoveries having been reported in thousands of cases. Formula and literature mailed on request. John J. Fulton Co., San Francisco. Edmondson Drug Co., 11 N. Broad St. and 106 N. Pryor St., Atlanta, are local agents.—(Advt.)

SECRET PASSAGE LEADS TO TRAIL OF WHISKY

Police Find Sliding Panel in Home of J. V. Fain and Confiscate Seventeen Cases

In a raid made on the home of J. Vance Fain, 238 Simpson street, Sunday afternoon, a secret room, to which entrance could be gained only through a sliding panel in the back of a clothes closet, was found filled with cases of whisky.

Patrolmen J. D. Dorsett and N. F. Roberts raided the house after four negroes, arrested for being drunk on the streets Saturday night, had confessed that they bought the liquor from Fain.

The officers searched the house and were about to leave, when a careful hunt was made in the closet of Fain's bedroom, on the second floor. No whisky was discovered in there, but the sliding door was found. Passing through this, the officers found themselves in a back room in which were seventeen cases of whisky, containing pints and half pints, and many empty cases.

The patrol was summoned and the whisky carted away. The neighborhood near the Fain residence on Simpson street is a good residential one, and the sight of the police patrol carting away whisky cases on Sunday afternoon caused considerable excitement.

Fain was taken to headquarters, where he gave $1,000 bond. He will appear before Recorder Broyles Tuesday morning. His wife was also charged with keeping a blind tiger, but because of the fact that she has a little baby to care for, she was not arrested. The charges were served on her, however, and she will appear with her husband in police court Tuesday.

HARRY HOLLAND TO FACE THEFT CHARGE IN CHICAGO

Man Acquitted on Pickpocket Charge Is Taken Back for Trial

Harry Holland, alias Willie Newman, alias Willie Nelson, alias Harry Hollander, arrested as a pickpocket in the crowd around the recent fire in the McKenzie building, next the Piedmont hotel, was taken to Chicago by Detective Peter all, of the Chicago force, Monday.

Holland was recently tried before Judge Calhoun, of the criminal court of Atlanta, on the pickpocket charge, but was acquitted because of lack of evidence. He was held for the Chicago authorities.

Hall states Holland was captured by him last October for stealing valuable furs from a woman in a cab. Holland, then released on bond, skipped town, says the detective.

The Atlanta police think he is wanted in many places, because of his resistance to having his photograph taken for the organ's gallery here. Because of this the photograph was sent to nearly every city in the country. Chicago was the first to respond.

MORE MONEY IS SENT TO FUND FOR STRIPING

Another subscription has come to the Journal office for the family of Edgar Stripling, the man who was brought back to Georgia in 1911 to serve a murder term on the prison farm after he had lived for thirteen years as chief of police in Danville, Va.

Stripling has given up hope of pardon and life, and on the prison farm, and his family is destitute, as was told in The Journal's Sunday magazine. It was this story that has prompted Mrs. Will Ballard, of Rutledge, Ga., to send $5 for his family, she writes.

MERCHANTS WILL LIGHT UP STORES FOR SHRINERS

Plans Are Being Made for Elaborate Light Decorations for Store Fronts

Evidence is at hand in the form of letters from Atlanta merchants to Potentiate Forrest, Adair, of Yaara temple, that these merchants are planning elaborate light decorations for their store fronts during Shrine week in May.

"Our own plans are lavish enough," said Mr. Adair Monday, "but it is plain that whatever we do is going to be matched in full measure by the occupants or owners of downtown store property."

Mr. Adair addressed a letter last week to all the downtown merchants and owners of downtown property, reminding them of the prizes offered by the local Shriners for the most striking decorations worked out in electric lighting. His object was to determine just how generally they are planning to decorate. The scores of answers that have reached him already are convincing that practically all, if not absolutely all, will be together in this matter.

"It is estimated there will be between 30,000 and 40,000 visitors to Atlanta this week," Mr. Adair wrote. "We have succeeded in getting the visitors to come, and our chief aim now is to make a good impression on them in Atlanta's behalf while they are here."

CO-OPERATION IS URGED. "The local committee has appropriated thousands of dollars for the purpose of making a spectacular electrical display on our main streets. We are anxious to have every merchant and property holder in the business center join with us by decorating with electric lights, either permanently or temporarily, their buildings and places of business for the week."

Five hundred dollars in three prizes have been offered by the Shriners for the most attractive displays. The first prize will be $250, the second $150 and the third $100. The awards will be decided by a committee of ladies to be named later.

Only sixty days intervene before the time when these decorations must be ready. Much of the material to be used must be shipped into Atlanta. The "Shriners' committee" is urging all, therefore, to make their plans and order their work at once.

Local contractors are busy already with these details. Noble Goodman, a member of the Shrine in Seattle, Wash., and a corps of assistants, including two artists and a draftsman, arrived in Atlanta several days ago. They are specialists in electrical decoration, and with the sanction of the Shrine committee they are assisting the local contractors.

POLICE HELP WOMAN AND SMALL CHILDREN

Mrs. Williams Arrives Here to Meet Husband, but He Fails to Appear

Mrs. Florida Williams, a pretty young woman, twenty-three years old, arrived in Atlanta Sunday afternoon from Greenville, S. C., with two little children, expecting to meet her husband, who had written for her to come.

Instead, she found no one at the station. After waiting for nearly an hour, she became hysterical, and her tears and sobs attracted the attention of Patrolman A. D. Bell.

She told him that her husband, an automobile salesman, had written for her to come to him, saying he would meet her at the train. She was penniless and knew no one in Atlanta, so the patrolman took her and the two children to police headquarters, where Mrs. Mary Bohnefeld, the matron, cared for her.

Monday, after it was discovered by the police that her husband had gone to Leesburg, S. C., a purse was raised for Mrs. Williams and the children, and they will be sent back to Greenville, S. C.

BIBLE CONFERENCE ENDS WITH SUNDAY MEETINGS

Dr. McClurkin's Address on "Power of Gospel" Last of Session

The Bible conference at the Baptist Tabernacle closed Sunday night with an interesting meeting at which Dr. Newton S. McClurkin, the well known Los Angeles evangelist, spoke. Dr. McClurkin's subject was, "The Power of the Gospel," and he made a strong argument for the dominance of Christ's influence in every man's life.

Sunday afternoon Dr. Camden M. Cohn, the architect, whose research work gives much original data on the Bible, spoke on the proof of Christ's existence as evidenced by old manuscripts. Sunday morning Dr. S. D. Gordon, of Philadelphia, spoke on the "Power of the Gospel," and he made a strong argument for the need of control in a man's life, citing the points that need to be watched.

Miss Wheaton was complimented with a large bouquet bearing the card of the Elks, and a vote of thanks was extended to her and Mr. Murray. Dancing was continued until midnight.

IN LOCAL THEATERS

ATLANTA—Anna Pavlova. FORSTY—Vanderbilt. BLOU—The County Sheriff.

(Criticism of initial performances at the local theaters are written by members of the Journal staff. All other matter appearing in this column is furnished by the theater management.)

In New York and other big cities where the Pavlova company has appeared this season critics have noted the feminine members of the big organization are quite as remarkable for beauty and figure as for their airy grace. "The Dance of Spring," which is one of the diversifications, or shorter numbers, on the program for Atlanta, has been called "an artist's dream of a Grecian idyl." Pavlova opens her stay at the Atlanta tonight, remaining Tuesday.

That Pavlova is not really a Russian dancer, but a universal dancer, is brought out by the program for Atlanta. Among the diversifications there are three dances in Grecian mode, one in Spanish, one Algerian, one Hungarian and one fragile little dance that belongs to no country but fairyland. The piece de resistance of the program, the bucolic farcical dance drama, "The Magic Flute," might take place anywhere. The other ballet, "The Invitation to the Dance," while having for its plot a love story that belongs to all the world, is tonic in its conception. A matinee will be played Tuesday.

Seats were placed on sale today for the famous "Ziegfeld Follies," said to be the largest musical comedy entertainment in the world, which is announced for presentation at the Atlanta Thursday and Friday, with matinee Friday. This will mark the first visit here of this celebrated institution, and the probabilities are that the $2.00 sign will be displayed in front of the theater long before the curtain rises on the performance. The big cast comprises the names of 150 entertainers.

This week's Forsyth bill promises to be one of the cleverest of the season. It has been put together by the best qualified show builders and it is predicted it will prove to be one of the biggest hits in the history of the busy playhouse. There are some of the best known and best liked features in the Keith circuit and there are acts that have been wonderfully clever on the Orpheum circuit in the west.

One of the star acts will be the contribution of Laddie Cliff, "England's clever boy comedian," who is classed with the best singers and dancers in vaudeville. Ever since he was six years of age he has been before the footlights either in the musical halls of Europe or the principal theaters of America. He has been a star with the musical comedy successes in England and he was a feature with the Folies Bergere in America.

Harry Tighe and his colleagues, will offer another of the star acts of the bill. The famous comedian has surrounded himself with a company of ten clever singing and dancing artists and will offer a miniature musical comedy he pleases to call "Taking Things Easy." Iamed, the sensational Turkish pianist, will be one of the features. This man arrived in New York some weeks ago direct from Constantinople and scored one of the biggest hits ever recorded along Broadway. He desired to tour America and was given a route that brings him to Atlanta, and theatergoers are going to have a treat worth while. Albert Moore and Myrtle Young, two clever, pretty and entertaining singing and dancing comedienne, will help make the bill worth while, and Carl Ryan and Dora Early will sing themselves into good favor. Hill and Syvina, sensational bicyclists, and Will and Kemp, acrobatic comedians, complete the bill.

ENTERTAINMENT PLANNED FOR ST. PATRICK'S DAY

An entertainment will be given at Marist college hall the evening of March 17, St. Patrick's Day. A one-act farce, "Box and Cox," will be presented and there will be music. The entertainment, which is under the auspices of the Ancient Order of Hibernians and their chaplain, Father Guinan, will begin at 8 o'clock.

At 3 o'clock in the afternoon there will be an entertainment for young people under 16, the feature of which will be an illustrated "Trip Through Ireland."

HUNDREDS IN LINE TO BUY GRAND OPERA SEATS

First Day of Season Ticket Sale Gives Promise of Breaking Record

With hundreds of music lovers in line at Phillips & Crew's and the Cable Piano company, the opening day of the sale of season tickets for Metropolitan grand opera promises to break all past records.

The condition of the weather always affects the opening day of the sale and Monday's bright blue skies are unquestionably helping boost the first day's receipts. Not only were Atlantians in line, but scores had come from Marietta, Kirkwood, Decatur, College Park and other suburban communities to take their place in the ticket line. The sale opened at 9 o'clock and will open regularly every morning at that hour through March 28, when the sale of season tickets will end.

Prices this year are practically the same as last, ranging per season ticket from $21 to $7, and per ticket for single performance from $5 to $1. Attention is called to the fact that tickets for single performances cannot now be bought. This sale is exclusively for season tickets. The sale for single performances does not begin until April 6.

If the opening day's sale is a trustworthy indication, this year's Metropolitan opera season in Atlanta will be the most successful of the city's musical history.

NEWSPAPERMEN TO HOLD BIG CONVENTION

Interesting Program Arranged for Southern Assn. Conference in Atlanta

Some thirty or forty of the prominent newspaper men of the south will attend the convention of the Southern Newspaper Publishers' association in Atlanta next Monday and Tuesday. Atlanta newspaper editors and publishers are making arrangements for their proper entertainment. The meetings will be held in the Ansley hotel. They will last from 10 a. m. to 5 p. m., with intermissions for lunch. Buffet luncheons will be served each day for the visitors.

A banquet at the Piedmont Driving club will be tendered the members by their Atlanta coworkers Monday night. Other entertainments of more informal character will enliven the stay of the visitors.

F. W. R. Hinman, first vice president of the association, business manager of the Jacksonville Times-Union, will preside over the meetings, in the absence of President A. F. Sanford, General Sanford, publisher of the Knoxville Journal and Tribune, was operated upon for appendicitis the other day and will be unable to attend.

Don Seltz, business manager of the New York World, and Jason Rogers, publisher of the New York Evening Globe, are two of the prominent publishers who will attend the meetings. They will be heard in address on the business phases of newspaper work.

Overwhelming Verdict

A few months ago, a man in no way connected with the making of Postum or the marketing of coffee, wrote to quite a number of physicians all over the country asking their unbiased testimony in the case of Postum vs. Coffee.

The following excerpts from their letters constitute an overwhelming verdict

In Favor of Postum

"I have discarded coffee altogether in my family, and instead use Postum, which we find makes a rich, delicious drink, without any of the deleterious effects attendant on the continuous use of coffee."

"Our family have been users of Postum for a long time. We were very liberal coffee drinkers, but were conscious that coffee was harming us—our nervous system, digestion and heart action—so we quit the coffee and began using Postum. Now we relish it far more than we did coffee, and are all relieved of the old coffee troubles. As a physician I have induced several families to quit coffee and use Postum."

"Postum—when it is desirable to leave off coffee, on account of overstimulation or gastric disturbances."

"Postum has been used in my family nearly ever since it was placed on the market, and I recommend it to my patients. It is a nourishing drink. A great many families are giving their children Postum in place of coffee with best of results."

"I have used Postum in my family for years with the most satisfactory result—so much so that we have practically abolished coffee, and with it the coffee headaches, nervousness, and lying awake the best part of the night."

"I drink Postum every morning, and recommend it to my friends who have 'nerves' and indigestion."

"No more coffee for me. I am using Instant Postum and advise my patients to do likewise. I prefer it to the best coffee, and I have no more sour stomach attacks as I used to."

"For years I have been using Postum in the family and advocating it for my patients. I consider it to be exactly what its manufacturers claim for it. Postum is excellent in place of coffee where the latter is contraindicated. The food value of Postum plays an important part when compared with coffee."

"Have had many cases that could not drink coffee on account of its reflex action on the heart. Postum always supplies the place of coffee without the bad effects."

"I have used Postum for the past eight years in place of coffee. Before that I was troubled with frequent bilious headaches due to excessive use of coffee, and was then advised to use Postum. Since that time I have not had a single attack, which effect I attribute entirely to Postum. I frequently recommend it to others, who experience equally gratifying results."

"Hardly a week goes by that I do not advise some patient with an irritable, acid stomach and nervous heart to stop at once the use of all coffee and take up the use of Postum, and always with good results."

"I am satisfied that coffee is responsible in a great degree for the premature breakdown of our active men and women. They suffer from caffeine poisoning. Of the truth of this there is not the shadow of a doubt. Our common sense tells us that the daily swallowing of caffeine—overstimulating the heart and brain—will be followed by nervous depression, and finally by more or less disastrous results. I believe if people in general would use Postum as a beverage in place of coffee and tea their mental and physical condition would be much improved."

In the light of such testimony it would seem the part of wisdom to stop coffee and use Postum.

Postum is a genuine food-drink, made of whole wheat and a small percent of molasses. Contains the nutritious values of the grain, but is pure and absolutely free from the coffee drug, caffeine, or any other harmful substance.

Postum comes in two forms:

Regular Postum—must be well boiled to bring out its fine flavor. 15c and 25c packages.

Instant Postum—a soluble form. A teaspoonful stirred in a cup of hot water—with sugar and cream added—makes a delightful beverage instantly. 30c and 50c tins. The cost per cup of both kinds is about the same.

TEST OF NEW CREMATORY PLANNED NEXT SATURDAY

Destructor Company Wanted
It on Wednesday-Mayor
Names Saturday

The Destructor company on Monday filed with Mayor Woodward a request for a test of the new crematory on Wednesday.

Mayor Woodward replied that Wednesday in his opinion would not be a suitable day, but he would approve a test on Saturday.

The company and the city agreed several weeks ago to a test to be held on Saturday, but on account of wet weather the test was not held.

Three questions are to be determined by the test:

First, can the plant burn 250 tons of refuse in twenty-four hours, said refuse to contain not less than 45 per cent of pure garbage?

Second, can the plant, from the heat of this burning, generate sufficient steam to produce 1,500 kilowatts of electrical energy?

Third, can the plant do this at a cost not exceeding 25 cents per ton of refuse burned?

The refuse will have to be sorted previous to the test, so as to use the requisite proportions of pure garbage, trash, ashes, etc., as specified in the contract.

1,700 UNEMPLOYED ORDERED OUT OF CITY

Gen. Kelley and Army to Be Shipped Back to Frisco.
Camp Insanitary

(By Associated Press.)
SACRAMENTO, Cal., March 9.—Three militia companies stood guard today to see that "General" Kelley and 1,700 unemployed men obeyed orders when a special train was made up to carry them out of the city. Citizens planned to ship the men back to San Francisco.

One hundred deputy sheriffs were sworn in. The state troops were to take no part in the movement of the men unless the police and deputies proved unable to handle the situation.

Kelley was notified that he was expected to take his men aboard a train. The marchers left San Francisco last week for the purpose, it was announced, of going to Washington, D. C., and have been camped on Southern Pacific property. Several other companies of militia from Stockton and other nearby points are expected to arrive today.

Assurance of militia aid and a declaration of martial law if necessary were given the authorities yesterday by Governor Johnson, contingent on the inability of the police to disperse the army.

The situation at the "army" camp Sunday was both ludicrous and threatening. Baseball games, boxing matches and impassioned oratory were features. Thousands viewed the camp.

Sanitation was becoming bad, city health authorities said, and it was asserted that if the army were permitted to remain it would become a menace to health.

Ferocious-Looking Pug Is Pavlova's Protector Along Peachtree Street

MILIE ANNA PAVLOVA AND "BOUCHOK"

Famous Danseuse Arrives in Atlanta—Resembles Bright-
Eyed Bird When She Chirps
"Yes" in Answer to Question

Thin?
Well, that is a rather direct adjective to apply to the most famous dancer in the world, but should you describe Milie Anna Pavlova as slender, you would have but a vague conception of how willowy and slight she seemed tripping down Peachtree street Monday morning on the way from the Wincoff hotel to the Atlanta theater, where she dances Monday and Tuesday.

She was almost lost in the great sable wrapped around her shoulders and appeared for all the world like some bright-eyed bird as she chirped "Yes!" to you over the soft furs.

"Yes!" is almost, not quite, the extent of Milie Pavlova's English vocabulary, although she is reputed to have declared "ze turkey trot is rot" and to be abandoned above all else by a Russian danseuse.

Her chief companion in Atlanta, as in all her travels, is a fawn-colored Pekinese pug who trotted soberly along at Pavlova's side on the tip of a gleaming chain. If one judged him by his face, he would make a watchdog equal to Cerberus, but Pavlova appears to love him even more on account of his wicked eyes and his vicious jaw.

"What is his name?" Pavlova was asked.

"Bouchok," she replied. At least, that's the proper way to spell it. What Milie Pavlova actually said is something else.

RACE NARROWS DOWN TO SEAWRIGHT AND RENFROE

Supporters of Both First Ward Citizens Are Claiming They Will Win

The race for alderman from the First ward to succeed the late John H. Harwell has narrowed down to J. R. Seawright and J. N. Renfro, and the supporters of both are claiming they will win.

Mr. Renfro was a candidate for councilman last fall against Charles N. Alverson and was defeated by a close margin. He was supported in that race by Mayor Woodward, and he has the support of the mayor in his present race for alderman.

Mr. Seawright is being supported by the anti-Woodward forces, both in council and out, among those who are understood to be lending their influence in his favor being Charles H. Mason, former chairman of the police board, and Aldine Chambers, former councilman and candidate for mayor.

Alderman Harwell's place is to be filled by the general council, under a special charter amendment enacted two years ago by the legislature providing that vacancies in the general council shall be filled by the general council until the next regular election, which in the present case will be next December.

Thus Mr. Seawright and Mr. Renfro are candidates before the general council and are making their campaign with the members of that body. The regular membership of general council is thirty.

Alderman Harwell's death leaves twenty-five, and the illness of Alderman Candler cuts this down to twenty-eight. Accordingly, it will take fifteen votes to elect.

In the event of a tie, Mayor Woodward will vote, as he did in the election of a police commissioner from the Seventh ward last Monday.

W. M. PONDER HEADS TIFT COUNTY FARMERS

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
TIFTON, Ga., March 9.—Permanent organization of the Tift County Farmers' association was perfected at the regular monthly meeting of farmers at Tifton Saturday with about 150 farmers in attendance. W. M. Ponder was elected president, J. W. Hollis vice president and J. L. Herring secretary and treasurer.

The meeting Saturday was principally devoted to fertilizers, though several talks were made on trucking. Prof. J. R. Moore, of the Georgia Experiment Station, gave a talk on fertilizers, using the blackboard for chart illustrations.

President Tift of the Truckers' association, called a meeting of that association for next Saturday.

HOT WAR OPENED ON SALOONS OF CUTHBERT

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
CUTHBERT, Ga., March 9.—A. S. Perry and W. S. McWilliams, two citizens of Cuthbert, representing the Woman's Christian Temperance union, filed a petition with Judge W. E. Worrell of the superior court, Saturday asking for a restraining order against the beer saloons here, charging that these saloons are blind tigers and nuisances.

Cuthbert has four saloons and is perhaps the smallest town in the state having licensed saloons.

LOVE'S TRIBUTE

To the memory of Mrs. John H. Jones.

No sadder message ever touched the heart of Calhoun than that which came with electric thrill on last Wednesday, doing into unwilling ears the story of death—the demise of one of our lovely daughters.

Jeffie Forsyth McDaniel! How that name recalls to us the shy, sweet ways of her early years—the downward glance of her sea-blue eyes—the lurking dimples of the rounded cheeks we knew in her girlhood, ere she left us for a new home, and later joined her fate to another in the sober realities of life.

Like the violets she loved, her modesty was the companion of nobler virtues that unfolded in the dawning of her fated young motherhood.

The unwonted call came to her in the silent syllables of falling snow that she viewed from her window and read as a symbol of that immortality so soon to enfold her pure, young soul.

A cottage of loved ones bore her precious remains from the South Georgia home to Atlanta for a rest and wait in the quiet attraction of Patterson's chapel, which was a Mecca all the sad, sweet day for the gathering of Atlanta friends, whose responsive hearts expressed in many ways sincere sympathy and grief at the blight of an earthly frost on the half-blown bud they so much loved and admired as she unfolded in their midst.

In compliance with every wish, quickened activities, inspired by sympathy and friendship, soon made ready the Calhoun of the Logan Pitts for the sad reception of the stricken party and their sacred charge.

Here, in the home of a devoted, inspiring sister, on her bier of uncounted tokens of thought and love, and waiting, as if content in sleep, hushed by the lullaby of muffled tears.

The closing service of the morning, perfect in simplicity and beauty, was conducted by Rev. F. K. Simmes, of Dalton, a former pastor.

After his impressive reading of the Freshwater service for the dead, with a selection from Proverbs, 31st chapter, on the ideal woman, then followed amid the ascending influence of encircling sweetness, the partial versing of the hymns, "Jesus, Lover of My Soul," "Jesus, Savior, Pilot Me," sung in quartette after tender words of prayer from Revs. Mann and MacKay; the holy pathos of the benedictus—the exit from the home the white casket with its pall of choicest blooms, borne by Calhoun's young manhood down a partied line of flower-bearers to the gate. At last the winding of the silent procession by the terraced grounds of Jeffie's childhood home, then to the last resting place, above material din, beside a brother, gone before.

"Earth may change, but God and the soul stand sure." All that was and is of our cherished young friend, shall ever be enshrined in sacred memory—a balm for aching hearts.—(Adv.)

SAY FAIN DOES NOT LIVE IN SECOND WARD

Opponents of Candidate for Police Board Chairmanship
Question His Right on Board

Certain council members who are inclined to oppose the election of W. P. Fain to the chairmanship of the board of police commissioners are raising the point against Mr. Fain that he is not a resident of the Second ward, from which ward he was elected to membership on the police board.

Inasmuch as residence in the ward which a board member represents is a condition precedent to his eligibility, the point is liable to have a serious effect on Mr. Fain's candidacy for the chairmanship of the board, as well as upon his membership on the board.

The police board chairmanship is still up in the air and still has the politicians guessing. According to the prevailing "dope," Mr. Fain has five votes, Robert T. Pace has four votes, and W. A. Vernoy has three votes.

These votes are said to line up as follows:
For Fain—Baskin, Fain, Smith, King, Dixon.
For Pace—Pace, Clarke, Colcord, Mayor Woodward.
For Vernoy—Vernoy, Garner, Johnson.

The friends of Mr. Fain are urging him to "stand pat" and decline to shift either to Vernoy or Pace. The Pace to Fain, unless it should appear impossible for him to be elected. The Vernoy supporters hold the key to the situation. If they should switch to Fain they would elect him. If they should switch to Pace they would elect Pace.

The election will take place at the meeting of the police board Tuesday night, and Mayor Woodward will preside during the election.

PARENTS RETURN TO FIND DAUGHTER IS MARRIED

Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Hoffman,
However, Give Young Couple Blessing

When Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Hoffman returned to their home in Annie Park Sunday, after a trip to Florida, they were greeted with the news that their daughter, Virginia, had decided to become Mrs. Lott Warren during their absence and actually did so Saturday evening at St. Philip's cathedral, Rev. C. T. A. Pise performing the ceremony.

Mrs. Warren was one of the most charming members of the younger society set, and while there was no strong parental objection to her marriage to Mr. Warren, her parents had told the young people to "wait awhile."

But Dan Cupid is almost as notorious as Father Time in that respect, wherefore Mr. and Mrs. Warren are now on their way to Winter Grove, Fla., where Mr. Warren owns an orange grove, to spend their honeymoon.

CITY PHYSICIAN IS SUED FOR ERRONEOUS DIAGNOSIS

C. W. Miller Charges Dr. Kennedy
Sent Baby, Free of Smallpox, to Pest House

Sensational allegations are contained in a suit for $2,700 damages filed in Fulton superior court Monday afternoon against Dr. J. P. Kennedy, Atlanta's city health officer, by Charles W. Miller, a cotton buyer.

Miller alleges that on December 13, 1913, Dr. Kennedy ordered that Miller's nine-month-old son, Raymond, be taken to the smallpox hospital, known as the pest house; that the baby did not have the pox, but was suffering from scarlet fever; that Dr. Kennedy refused to allow another physician to consult with him in the diagnosis of the case, but ordered the baby taken to the pest house; that it was taken there and kept there for seventeen days; that because of its tender age its mother had to go with it; that the plaintiff was compelled to give up his work of cotton buying at his busiest season and give his attention to the care of his four other children; that as a result of his child and its mother going to the pest house the neighbors jeered and laughed at him and that his four other children to such an extent they were compelled to move their residence.

Miller declares in his suit that when he asked Dr. Kennedy to consult another physician the city health officer replied: "It makes no difference what any other physician says, if I say the child must go to the pest house, it must go."

"And," goes the suit, "to the pest house it did go."

It is contended by Miller that Dr. Kennedy knew within one week that the baby did not have smallpox, but that Dr. Kennedy kept it in the pest house for seventeen days, "with the intent and purpose of having it contract the disease to the end that the mistake of the said Kennedy might not be discovered."

Miller characterizes Dr. Kennedy's action as arbitrary, oppressive and malicious, and in disregard of the plaintiff's rights.

The attorneys who filed the suit for Miller were F. M. Powers and J. H. Leavitt. Judge Pendleton has set the case for the first Monday in May.

DR. KENNEDY'S STATEMENT

Dr. Kennedy was called up by The Journal at his residence and asked if he cared to state his side of the case. He said the said side about the case the better, because in his opinion the publication of the health department's troubles with smallpox patients, vaccinations, etc., hampers the work of the department.

"I diagnosed the child's case as smallpox," said Dr. Kennedy. "They asked me if they could call in another doctor and I told them they could call in several if they wished, but under the law I would have to pass on the case finally, this being my official duty as city health officer. I am not surprised that Mr. Miller has filed suit against me, as I had heard he took his complaint to one of two lawyers and they advised him he had no grounds for a suit. I cannot be held personally liable for what I do in the discharge of my official duty."

Many Moonshine Cases

At the session of the federal grand jury Monday morning a number of indictments were returned, most of them being for moonshine cases.

PLAN REVIVAL OF GAME PROTECTIVE ASSOCIATION

Letters Sent to Sportsmen All Over State Urging to Attend Meeting Here

A movement to revive the Georgia Game Protective association is under way. Howard Bucknell, a well known Atlanta sportsman, has requested the co-operation of State Game Commissioner Charles L. Davis in this movement and they are now mailing out letters to leading sportsmen in every section of the state urging them to attend a preliminary meeting in Atlanta.

At this meeting it is proposed to arrange for a big reorganization meeting to be held during the spring, at which the old association will be revived and made into a militant organization for the protection of game and enforcement of the game and fish laws. It is proposed that there shall be a state organization with branch organizations in every county.

Messrs. Davis and Bucknell would have the association study the present game laws and recommend amendments to the legislature which will greatly strengthen these laws.

The old association has not held a meeting in nearly two years.

HOW A BROOKLYN GIRL Got Strong and Well Again

Grace D. Lamb, of Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "I was all run-down and on the verge of nervous prostration. I could not sleep for pain in my back. In all I was a wreck. A friend told me what Vinol had done for her little girl so I tried it. I noticed an improvement after the first bottle. I could sleep well, my appetite improved, and after taking three bottles I am strong and well again."

Vinol is the most efficient strength creator for such women. It is the medicinal elements of the cod's livers contained in Vinol aided by the blood making and strengthening properties of tonic iron which makes it so far superior to all other tonics to build up health and strength for weak, tired, ailing women. It contains no oil and has a delicious taste.

We give back your money if Vinol does not do all that we claim. Elkin Drug Co., Atlanta, Ga.

ACME BREWING COMPANY
WINS IN MACON COURT

Judge Refuses Injunction Asked by Law Enforcement League Against Concern

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
MACON, Ga., March 9.—Judge Matthews has denied the petition for an injunction against the Acme Brewing company. He takes the position that he is controlled by a decision of the court of appeals, which he has no right to ignore, especially in view of the fact that the supreme court has never passed directly on the issue.

The judge takes the position that the court of appeals' decision is binding upon him, although, perhaps, he does not altogether agree with it. He states that if he were on the supreme court, with the case before him for final decision, he would be greatly impressed with the arguments of the plaintiff.

The petition was brought by the Law Enforcement league through Attorney R. D. Fagin. The brewery was represented by Attorney W. D. McNeill. The issue is this:

The sale of beer, agreed to be non-intoxicating for the purpose of the case, is prohibited by the state prohibition law.

Two College Girls Elope On Same Day to Atlanta

MR. AND MRS. C. HERMANN McARTHUR.
Mrs. McArthur is the first student ever to elope from Shorter college.

Wesleyan College, at Macon, and Shorter College, at Rome, Minus Two Senior Students, and Piedmont Hotel Plus Four Newlyweds

The Piedmont hotel Monday had the distinction of sheltering two runaway couples, one bride having eloped from Wesleyan college, at Macon, Ga., on the same day the other was eloping from Shorter college, at Rome, Ga.

All the young people are well known in Atlanta and throughout north Georgia, although until they read this story, Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Pruitt, late of Macon, will not know that Mr. and Mrs. J. Hermann McArthur, late of Bainbridge and Mount Vernon, are occupying the same hotel with them and are newlyweds, too.

The classic shades of Georgia's female institutions must be favorite haunts of D. Cupid to cause such an epidemic of elopements, for in neither case did parental objection enter into the matches, the young people just deciding to "get married," as they said at the Piedmont Monday morning.

Or it may be that spring is coming, and "a young man's fancy," etc., etc.

WAS MISS CHASON.
Mrs. McArthur until Sunday evening was Miss Maude Chason, daughter of a prominent physician and lumberman of Bainbridge. She was once a student at Agnes Scott college, Decatur, but since last fall has been a member of the senior class of Shorter college.

She and Mr. McArthur had been engaged for some time, and it was parentally agreed that the wedding should take place next fall. Mr. McArthur is a prominent young business man of Mount Vernon. He "prepped" at Georgia Military academy, College Park, and, in 1911, graduated from Mercer college, where he was a member of the Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity and prominent in student activities. Both of them have hosts of friends in Atlanta.

Sunday Mr. McArthur went to Rome, saw his fiancée and arranged for her to meet him at 6 o'clock Sunday evening. Miss Chason's sister agreed to further the plans for an elopement. At 6 o'clock Mr. McArthur was on the scene with a high-power touring car and thirty minutes later, like Lochinvar of old, he was speeding from Rome to Macon, forty miles away, where the ceremony took place.

Then the young couple came on to Atlanta. They will be here a few days, leaving for a honeymoon trip in Florida and Cuba. On their return to Georgia they will make their home in Macon.

SHORTER'S FIRST ELOPEMENT.
"I'm the first girl that ever eloped from Shorter," said Mrs. McArthur. "I certainly hope it doesn't start the habit up there, although I couldn't advise them to do any better."

As for Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Holt Pruitt, their elopement was equally as sudden as Mr. and Mrs. McArthur's. Mrs. Pruitt was Miss Lucille Flournoy, daughter of a prominent citizen of Fort Valley. Like Mrs. McArthur, she was in the senior class at her college, Wesleyan, but decided a marriage certificate was much better than a diploma.

Accordingly, although plans were complete for their marriage on the day of Miss Flournoy's graduation, the two of them slipped away from their friends after church in Macon Sunday and were quietly married at the Brown house.

Mr. Pruitt is a prominent young business man of LaGrange. He and his bride will leave Atlanta in a few days to spend their honeymoon in North Carolina.

LULU BELL SAID TO HAVE LEFT ATLANTA

Lulu Bell, a white woman, who recently sought the superior court's injunction to restrain the police from raiding her boarding house and annoying her guests, was arraigned in the city criminal court Monday morning and convicted on a charge of operating a disorderly house.

Judge Andrew Calhoun sentenced the woman to six months in jail without the privilege of paying a fine, but later suspended the sentence on condition that she leave the city.

According to court attaches she caught the next train.

leaving for a honeymoon trip in Florida and Cuba. On their return to Georgia they will make their home in Macon.

SHORTER'S FIRST ELOPEMENT.
"I'm the first girl that ever eloped from Shorter," said Mrs. McArthur. "I certainly hope it doesn't start the habit up there, although I couldn't advise them to do any better."

As for Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Holt Pruitt, their elopement was equally as sudden as Mr. and Mrs. McArthur's. Mrs. Pruitt was Miss Lucille Flournoy, daughter of a prominent citizen of Fort Valley. Like Mrs. McArthur, she was in the senior class at her college, Wesleyan, but decided a marriage certificate was much better than a diploma.

Accordingly, although plans were complete for their marriage on the day of Miss Flournoy's graduation, the two of them slipped away from their friends after church in Macon Sunday and were quietly married at the Brown house.

Mr. Pruitt is a prominent young business man of LaGrange. He and his bride will leave Atlanta in a few days to spend their honeymoon in North Carolina.

To Mr. Ultimate Consumer

This is an important message to YOU.

When quality is lowered or prices raised you are expected to pay the bills.

But to a certain extent the remedy is in your hands. You do not have to accept an inferior brand of goods or to pay more than a fair market price—for your retailer carries advertised goods, and these are "right" in quality and price. If they were not right, it would not pay continually to advertise them. Advertised goods are dependable. See that you get them—and thus protect yourself!

Knowledge is power. Keep posted as to what is being offered and as to what the prices are.

The advertising in The Journal is at your service every day in the year. It is written to you and for you.

It contains the news that is of interest to your pocketbook.

It spreads the markets before you and brings the town's show windows to your feet.

Read and profit—let some one else get the unadvertised, inferior or over-priced goods and thus pay the penalty for not "keeping informed."

Welcome.

On Wednesday of this week, Atlanta will entertain several of the most prominent women of America. Jane Addams, the noted head resident of Hull House in Chicago; Mrs. Desha Breckenridge, of Lexington, Ky.; Mrs. Medill McCormick, of Washington; and other officers of the National American Women's Suffrage Association, will be in the city to attend the Equal Suffrage conference which will be held Wednesday evening at the Atlanta theater.

Their visit is of special interest to those who advocate suffrage for women, but the public generally will welcome the distinguished visitors.

They are not only leaders in the movement for equal suffrage, but have accomplished much along other lines. Miss Addams, in particular, is one of the most beloved women in America, her great work at Hull House having attracted international attention. For three years she was president of the National Conference of Charities and Corrections, and she has long been prominently identified with the child labor and all social betterment movements. As a social worker, author and lecturer she has become a notable figure among the progressive women of the country.

A technicality is something that helps the wrong to defeat the right.

A bachelor's idea of real misery is being left alone with a noisy baby.

An Institution.

The forming of a Bell House club in Atlanta brings home to all who knew the late Mrs. Emma Bell the great and far-reaching influence of her character.

It is given to but few of us to live that our works not only will make the world better while we are still of it, but will be so lasting as to give strength and help long after we have passed into "the undiscovered country."

Mrs. Emma Bell was one of those few. While she lived her one great aim was to better those about her and to make of her "boys" a fraternity whose bond was as close and firm as it was lasting. The Bell House as an institution will not perish, will continue the unique organization Mrs. Bell made it.

The old house on Peachtree street will continue to welcome to its threshold those "boys" who called it "home" year in and year out. The spirit of fellowship will hover still over its portals and the memory of its one-time mistress will be kept green in the hearts of the "boys" who knew and loved her.

Never judge a woman's mind by the time it takes her to make it up.

Did you ever hear of an actress who wanted a divorce without publicity?

Moving Forward.

From St. Paul, comes the news that within the next thirty days about ten thousand men will be given work on railroads in the Northwest.

A dispatch from Gary, Ill., announces that more than two thousand men have returned to work during the last few weeks at the Gary plant of the Illinois Steel company. "The working force numbers seventy-two hundred now. The other Steel corporation subsidiaries in the town have made proportionate increases. There is a twenty-five per cent increase in the operating capacity of the open-hearth and blast furnaces, as compared with a few weeks ago."

At Portland, Oregon, a new scale of wages "said to be the most liberal in increase during the railroad history of the Pacific coast," went into effect on the first of the month. James J. Hill, owner of the Oregon Electric and United Railways, is credited with the announcement.

These are a few among many good omens from all parts of the country, definite indications that a new era of enterprise, development and business faith is at hand.

For several months past, the problem of unemployment has been painfully manifest, though apparently no greater than it commonly is during the winter. The approach of spring relaxes those natural and economic conditions which have been responsible. Building operations, suspended during the season of ice and snow, will resume. Farm work will begin. All lines of industry will stir with fresh energy.

At the same time, the atmosphere of financial uncertainty which prevailed a year ago is steadily clearing. Business knows precisely the new plan of legislation to which it must adjust itself, and the adjustment is being effected without delay or disturbance. Never were the material interests of the United States on a sounder or more encouraging basis.

Passing of "Penny Dreadfuls."

A generation ago the average boy of our land was craving blood and thunder novels. The "penny dreadful" was an institution upon which our adult population looked with concern and for which there was an insatiable demand among the minors.

Within the last few years the taste of the boys themselves has changed. Literature which made heroes of criminals and glorified the villain no longer is in demand. From the publishers we have learned this fact. They declare that there is no market now, of considerable extent, for anything of that type. The boy readers have brought about the change.

The chief librarian of the Boy Scouts in America is in Atlanta this week for the purpose of educating further the youthful mind in this regard. He declares an insidious element seeks now to replace in the literature of boys the former blatant and bold countenance of that reading matter.

"Time was when cheap juveniles might be recognized quickly by their paper bindings," says he, "but now we are beset by the nickel novel in the guise of a bound book of respectable appearance."

The boy scout movement has organized a library commission among prominent American educators. Under the direction of this body there has been chosen a series of books, stirring stories of adventure, full of healthful thrills for the delectation of the boy.

This shows the general tendency toward betterment of morals in all phases of life. Its trend is along the same line that the boys laid down when they decreed that they cared for no more "blood and thunder stuff."

Many a girl imagines that her heart is broken when her lover is out of order.

A woman dislikes a serial story because she can't tell how it is going to end until it is finished.

The chap who boasts of his ability to accomplish more in one day than his neighbor can in a week is content to let it go at that.

We pity the poor bachelor who makes a bad break at the dinner table, because he has no wife to kick him on the shins.

The Cost of Bad Roads.

The importance of good roads to the city consumer as well as the country producer is strikingly shown in the following story from Harper's Weekly. It seems that a farmer in Sullivan county, Tennessee, a few miles from Bristol, had a hundred bushels of potatoes which he expected to market during the winter. The roads, however, were so bad that he was unable to do any hauling; the potatoes rotted in his cellar. Meanwhile the price of potatoes in Bristol went up to a dollar and forty cents a bushel. In the course of the winter ten carloads of farm produce were imported into Bristol every day from distant points. Food prices were very high throughout that section; and yet, there was a store of foodstuffs ample to supply the people. Farmers were losing money and town dwellers were losing money, simply because of a lack of well-built, well-kept highways.

The problem of the high cost of living is largely a problem of distribution and marketing. So soon as direct, economical means of exchange are provided, the interests of both the producer and the consumer will be greatly advanced.

Good roads are one of the essentials to this improvement. They will not only enable farmers to market their products more easily and cheaply but they will also encourage the production of foodstuffs. Certainly, they are indispensable to the development of truck farming.

It is estimated that the cost of wagon transportation would be cut in two in the United States, if the country were supplied with adequate roads. Millions of dollars would be saved the farmer and millions, too, would be saved the people of towns and cities.

Whatever amount of money the State or the Federal government efficiently spends for good roads will be an investment of unlimited returns. It will foster the interests of all the people and will be for the enrichment and progress of the common country.

When a married man keeps a lot of ready-made excuses on tap his marriage is something of a failure.

A red nose may be no conclusive evidence of inebriety, but it carries much of the burden of proof.

A girl who has been engaged a half dozen times looks as careworn as a married woman.

Editorials in Brief

Better the sorriest citizen thinking he can take hold of life, and that his faint spark of free-will can burn holes through the thickest, than a world of orderly persons of regular habit and contented mind. Rather wildness, than that men should find this a locked world, where all the returns are in.

Better absurd mites, strutting over large landscapes, than such a fatness of cheery slaves, taking orders from their betters. Better a petty race should strive vainly, than accept its own littleness. If it is doomed to futility, let it at least live as if all the roads to victory were open.

So when we face the push and thrust of life in each generation, let us be glad that youth is claiming its right to live. Let the young flourish and prosper. It is wiser to tear down the temples than to accept defeat. Effort is finer than resignation, and peril is safer than despair in routine. And by that high courage and fresh experiment, they defeat confusion, and lift their heads above despond. So the world is full of homes. Obscure men deal manfully with their stint of work. Countless unknown women suffer and love. Order gains no chaos. A will is at work upon the welter.—Harper's Weekly.

If you ever, at your own convenience and with adequate clothing, have shovelled snow for one hour, you may know that it takes considerable strength and patience. THE DIARY OF OUR OWN SAMUEL PEPYS.

March 3.—With C. Reigelman the barister to luncheon, of a steak and beef and a mince meat pye, very fine too, and then the talk ran on letters, and he did speak of some books for boys, such as "Scottish Chiefs" and "The Days of Bruce," by Porter, he said. How now, quoth I, "The Days of Bruce" was writ by Grace Aguilar, for albeit I did never read it, yet do I well remember where it was wont to stand in my Aunt Ernestina's bookcase when I was a lad. Whereat he waxed wroth, and called me out of my name, and berated me for an ignoramus, with so much warmth I was minded to agree with him, nearly. So he proposed a wager, of two dollars, he saying Porter had wrote "The Days of Bruce." To a book-seller's then, whom we questioned, but he knew not, as is the way of book-clerks, and showed us the catalogue, which when Charley saw he did fling me the sum of the wager and strode from the shop in high dudgeon. But I did smile perforce at his wide ignorance. To my office then all the evening, and so home and to bed.

Last Saturday evening we received a letter from John Eidein, Jr., from Roxbury, N. Y. In this letter John says that he has been missing from Fleischmanns for 12 days. He also states that he has been suffering from indigestion. He worked for Sheffield-Slawson-Decker Company helping fill their ice house last Friday. He also caned the seats of five chairs. John says that the snow is from one and one-half to two feet deep in Roxbury. John is sleeping with his father and aunt at Roxbury. He sends his best regards to all his friends in this place.

Worldwide Control of Plant Diseases.

International control of plant diseases is the object of a very important conference now in session in Rome. It is proposed to organize a convention of the leading plant scientists to discuss methods of stamping out plant diseases and to regulate the import and export of plants.

Science describes the meeting as a phytopathological conference, and it is being held at the International Institute of Agriculture. Fifteen countries have representatives there. Last year the French government wished to have such a conference in connection with the general assembly of the International Institute of Agriculture, but acceptances were not sent in promptly enough to permit it to make permanent arrangements.

The nations of the world are extremely careful to prevent the importation of diseased human beings and infected animals, but not until recently did they realize that the minimizing of plant diseases is equally important. Some nations have put up the bars against dangerous tropical products, but no general international agreement in this regard has been effected. The United States government absolutely prohibits the entrance of any horse, hog, cat, lizard or any other animal, or of noxious plants, from the Philippine Islands. It is possible that our restrictions will serve as a model for the conference now sitting at Rome.

Quips and Quiddities

Mr. Younghusband paced impatiently for hours after midnight up and down the cheerless bedroom floor. He was fretful and lonely, for his wife had taken her first post-nuptial trip away from him. She would be away a whole week—a whole week of loneliness and anxiety. He pictured her equally—more—distressed at the separation. Outside, to accentuate his misery, the rain streamed down in an unending torrent. The wind whistled a lugubrious wail as an accompaniment to his feelings, and the thunder put in a few well-chosen orchestral effects.

The doorknob began to ring violently just as the clock struck 2. Mr. Younghusband listened with mixed joy and fear. His wife, perhaps. His eager ear heard the janitor, sleepy and grumbling, open the door.

A messenger boy, dripping and soaked, stood without the portal as the janitor unbolted the door. He handed a saturated envelope to the janitor. "Mr. Younghusband."

"Anything important?"
"Naw, 'tain't nothin'." A woman says her heart is broken for him in Boston.—Puck.

Some time since a peevish looking citizen was seated in a cafe when a man entered, leaving the door wide open. Instantly the peevish party became violently agitated.

"Shut the door, you chump!" he loudly exclaimed. "Where were you raised?" A baby.
The other quietly closed the door and then, taking a seat at a nearby table, he buried his head in his arms and began to sob. Naturally this touched the heart of the peevish one.

"My friend," said he, going over to the sobby citizen, "I didn't mean to hurt your feelings. I merely wanted you to close the door."

"I am not crying because you hurt my feelings," was the sobby rejoinder. "You suggested, I was raised in a barn, and every time I hear a mule bray I get homesick."

Ah! he audience held its breath and simply thr-rilled as Bravado Jack, the hero, killed the last of the Indian. He staggered about, he almost fainted with the loss of blood, then he gazed about him and suddenly his voice rang out with hope. "See!" he cried. "The dawn breaks upon yon topmost heights!"

The stage remained in almost total darkness. "See!" he yelled again. "The dawn breaks upon yon topmost heights!" Still darkness reigned. "The dawn!" The dawn! He screamed, raging about the stage. "It breaks! The dawn!"

A heap popped over the mountain-top. "Old 'ars, guv'nor," said the head. "Don't be in such a desprate 'urry! Some one's bin an', switched the 'lectricity off!"

A local contributor cites a fresh example of the fashion in which the youth of today trips the unwary parent:

"Father," said the son home from college, "I must have better rooms at college. Why, at the place I room now there isn't even hot water to shave with in the morning."

"Son, when I was your age I never had hot water to shave with. Did it when the weather wasn't too blooming cold out in front of the wood shed and made lather out of any old soap I could find."

"But, father," expostulated the son, "didn't you say you sent me to college that I might have the advantages you didn't have?"

A young minister was invited to pass his vacation at the summer home of a wealthy member of his congregation. The little daughter watched the young man closely during the visit, and one morning sat down beside him and began to draw on her slate.

"What are you doing?" the minister inquired.
"I'm going to draw your picture," replied the child.
The young man sat very still, and the little girl worked away earnestly. Suddenly she stopped and compared her work with the original.

"I don't like it very much," she said. "I guess I'll put a tail on it and call it a dog."

During rehearsals in New York William Collier went to a nearby quick lunch place for a bite to eat. He called for an order of fried eggs. Across the table sat another man, and the waiter asked him for his order.

"Give me the same—but fresh ones, mind you."

The waiter sang out to the man behind the partition:

"Two orders of fried eggs—one of 'em fresh!"

The next day Collier sought out a new place to appease his midday hunger.

Underdone Outlets, proprietor of the Speedy cafe, was notoriously hard-hearted. The most weeping widow who ever gazed a melodrama couldn't have wept a slice of stale bread out of his restaurant without the price. So, when a pale and timorous bum approached the desk and made a faltering appeal, it was no surprise to the lunch fiends to hear a curt, "Nothing doing, Beat it!"

"I'm not a beggar," retorted the hungry man. "I'm willing to scrub floors or wash dishes. I'm just out of prison and nobody will give me work. I'm starving."

The proprietor betrayed a faint interest.
"I'll tell you the truth," explained the ex-convict. "I was a kind of a counterfeiter. I used to take a hundred dollar bill and split it in two with a razor. Then I'd take a one and split that and then paste the halves together, so I'd have two centuries. If the sucker didn't look on both sides, it took 'em five years to catch me."

Mr. Outlets beckoned the ex-prisoner behind the bar.

"Order what you like on the house," he whispered. "I've got a steady job for you. I'll give you $30 a week to slice ham for my sandwiches."—Lippincott's.

Wit and money abound in Detroit. This story touches both.

Introducing the money: A young man bought a cheap automobile—one of those pieces of nicely adjusted junk that snort, scream, and howl for help, accomplishing every known linguistic feat except the singing of a Greek chorus. Then the youth formed the habit of using the machine whenever he went to call on his sweetheart.

The fact that excavating was being done in the street where she lived did not hinder him. The debris could not impede him. He called regularly.

Introducing the wit: One morning he received a note from the girl saying:
"I had a thrill last night. I heard a series of explosions in the street outside and thought you had come to call."—Popular Magazine.

"I think the baby has your hair, ma'am," said the nurse girl, looking pleasantly at her mistress.

"Gracious!" exclaimed the lady, glancing up from her novel. "Run into the nursery and take it away from him! What will he do next?"—Stray Stories.

"So you got your poem printed?"

"Yes," replied the determined author. "I sent the first stanza to Uncle Know-it-All's column with the inquiry: 'Can any one give me the rest of this poem?' Then I sent in the complete poem over another name."

It is well known that in the bed of the St. Lawrence river, the outlet of the great lakes, there are in many places masses of rocks that make its navigation dangerous, except to reliable men whose knowledge of the safe channels is unquestioned. A passenger on one of its steamers was plying the captain with questions as to the safety of the journey, and at length asked:
"Captain, do you know where all the rocks are in this river?"

In his patient, deliberate manner, he replied: "No, ma'am, I don't know where all the rocks are, but I know where the channel is."—Christian Herald.

SCHOOL REPUBLICS

II.—CIVICS IN THE LABORATORY.

B. FREDERIC J. HASKIN.

"I used to use tobacco, but since I was elected mayor haven't chewed a chew." This was the testimony of a youthful executive of a school city recently. A citizen was being tried by the school's municipal court on the charge of chewing tobacco. He was properly represented by counsel and the regularly chosen city attorney conducted the prosecution. The judge was an Italian girl of fifteen who presided with great dignity and impartiality. In defense counsel for the accused said that the city's chief magistrate himself was addicted to the weed. Thereupon his honor spoke up in meeting and in one terse sentence told the story of a reformation wrought by responsibility.

Another mayor was the first to be arrested in a new city government. He went through the hall and yanked the bell in an ungaurded moment. He was tried and found guilty and ordered to ring the bell every morning for a certain time, thus relieving the janitor. Another mayor got too officious. He mayored all over the school in first-class emulation of the poo-bah in "The Mikado." The following little note appeared on the board one day: "The mayor may attend to his duties during school hours only from 11:45 to 12:00 and from 3:45 to 4:00. The versatile young man resigned, but when the city council demanded his reasons he realized that it put him in a foolish light. He withdrew his resignation and thereafter kept his activities within constitutional limits."

A young and virile chief of police took umbrage at a classmate and threw a book at him. It was not necessary for the teacher to inflict punishment in the old way. When he realized what he had done the chief of police wrote out his resignation and sent it to the mayor in the next room. That official wrote on the back, "I will not accept it." Whereupon the erring chief ordered one of his own policemen to arrest him, saying, "What's good for the others is good for me." Punishment was decreed by the city court in due form, and the chief resumed his duties.

How sanity of vision and the judicial poise are acquired by children in a school government was well demonstrated in a certain New York City case. The accused stood at the bar on an indictment of three counts, to wit: that he did a jig during school hours; that he talked aloud while the teacher was writing on the blackboard; that he swore at a class policeman who threatened to arrest him. The court, consisting of three judges, found that he broke the laws whenever an opportunity offered. The accused pleaded guilty but submitted a letter from his teacher to the effect that his conduct had improved since the serving of the warrant.

The presiding judge, a boy, suspended sentence on the first count, inasmuch as he had pleaded guilty at the suggestion of the court; dismissed the second because of the written affidavit of the teacher; imposed sentence on the charge of using profanity. The prisoner was sentenced to arise in the assembly hall and publicly apologize to the policeman who had been insulted by him. In this school 4,200 students govern themselves.

A law in one school simply directed that no snowballs should be thrown. Immediately an iconoclast went out and tossed one at a fence. The prosecuting attorney felt in duty bound to take action, although no one had been hit or hurt. Accordingly, the law was changed to specifically prohibit the throwing of snowballs at any person whatsoever. One school wishing to protect its front lawn passed a law which said: "There shall be no walking on the lawn." Whereupon a boy tramped on the way out of grass behind the school. Upon being tried he pleaded not guilty and showed that the intent of the statute was to protect only the front lawn. He was acquitted and the law was altered to suit the needs at issue.

A lot of unruly boys were demoralizing the night school of a Philadelphia suburb. The school city idea was tried as a last resort. When nominations began, a ringleader who was known as Thomas Smith was put up for the city council. He took the floor and said: "If you are going to vote for me call me Henry Jameson." A number of other boys laughed heartily and then applauded. After the election twenty boys went to the principal and confessed that they had enrolled under false names so that their parents and the regular city authorities would not have them properly ticketed should they ever be arrested for grave misdemeanors; but if they were going to have the responsibility of governing themselves they wished "to take their right names. They did so, and the transformation was marvelous. Personal cleanliness and decorum became the rule and thereafter a high standard was maintained.

An unruly, untidy, calloused truant, a girl who lived in the slums at the foot of Brooklyn bridge, was a serious trial to the school authorities until she was elected to the city council. The teacher felt personally insulted over the honor thus bestowed on one who had so openly and so repeatedly defied her and who had so completely disregarded the rules of the school. She went home to sleep on a plan of getting rid of the girl as an office-holder without seeming to disapprove of the system which she herself had put into operation. The girl solved the problem by appearing the next morning to take her oath of office all resplendent in a clean and patched dress, a face that had bravely withstood thorough cleaning and a chastened demeanor that has been maintained ever since. One bad boy was elected to the school legislature. His right about face was so manifest that the teacher finally complimented him. He replied that it all was due to the fact that so much was expected of a member of the legislature! Hundreds of such cases could be cited.

In a school where a state was organized a Japanese boy was elected governor. His constituents testified afterward that he was selected because he was bright, and also for the reasons that he seemed to have a clear understanding of the American system of government and had previously demonstrated executive ability. In another state a girl was elected governor and the chief justiceship went to a Japanese.

Playing hockey was so common in a New York school that the average was never lower than twenty-five cases a day. The school police force reduced it to two a day within a few weeks after it had been organized. The officers and "men" of the force naturally knew the ropes and were next to the haunts of the runaways. A law against cigarette smoking by minors was a dead letter on the statutes of a Massachusetts city. The mandates of the school board against this evil, designed expressly to uphold the city ordinance, likewise were honored more in the breach than in the observance.

When the school democracy was organized one of the first laws passed by the children was an anti-cigarette measure. The results were not immediate, partly because some of the new officials first had to reform themselves. The town knackers chortled and laughed at the school principal. But heady times were made and before vacation time came around the campaign of arrests, trials and punishments within the school itself had succeeded where the regular city and school officials had failed.

At the request of Major General Leonard Wood, Mr. Gill organized school cities and states throughout Cuba, in 1899. The new republicans took to the system with avidity and in many parts of the island the real mayors and governors would go to the schools to watch their proceedings. In April 1911, the system was introduced among the Indian schools of this country. The Carlisle Indian school has a federal government, consisting of three states and sixteen cities. The system has been given a very practical turn in several Indian schools where the board of public works has cleaned up the grounds, built sidewalks, made swings for the girls and built outdoor gymnasiums for the girls as well as for themselves. The United States commissioner of education, Mr. P. S. Claxton, last year ordered the adoption of the system in the Alaskan schools. One Alaskan school elected a girl judge.

LITTLE STORIES FOR BEDTIME

By Thornton W. Burgess

It is hard to be believed. Ask Peter Rabbit. He knows. Yes, indeed, he knows. It is hard enough not to be believed when one is telling the truth but to tell the truth and then have everybody tell you that they don't believe you is worse still. Anyway, Peter Rabbit thinks so. To make it worse it was great news that Peter had to tell, and, of course, he might just as well have had no news at all.

It all came from Peter's curiosity to see the deepest part of the Green Forest when everything was covered with snow. Of course, he had to satisfy that curiosity. It wouldn't have been like Peter not to have done so. So off he went all by himself way into the deepest part of the Green Forest, close to the foot of the Great Mountain, and there he found it so still that he could feel the stillness. Anyway, that's what he said. And it so lonesome there that Peter would have been afraid of his own shadow had he seen it. He had made up his mind that no one ever visited that part of the Green Forest, at least not in the winter time, when suddenly he saw tracks. And such tracks! It was those tracks that had made Peter all his present trouble. You see, no one would believe Peter when he told about those tracks.

The first one Peter saw after getting back to the dear Old Briar Patch was Sammy Jay, and though Peter doesn't like Sammy, he just had to tell him about those strange tracks.

"They were as big as the tracks of Farmer Brown's boy," said Peter, his big brown eyes round with excitement. "Probably he made them," said Sammy Jay shortly.

"But they were not his tracks, only something like his—the ones he makes in the mud around the Smiling Pool when he goes swimming in the summer and you know as well as I do that he never makes that kind of tracks in the winter, Sammy Jay," cried Peter.

"Besides," Peter hurried on, "whoever made those tracks had claws, great great big claws."

Sammy laughed harder than ever and in the most provoking way. "Do you expect me to believe any such story as that, Peter Rabbit?" he demanded. "You better not talk to me about not telling the truth when you tell such a story as that," and off flew Sammy, still laughing to think that Peter should try to make him believe such a foolish story.

Peter looked after him and scratched his head thoughtfully. "Those tracks did look something like those of Farmer Brown's boy," he muttered. "They were rounder, but they were big and they had toes and—well, perhaps they didn't look very much like them, but they did look something like them, and I said something. I believe I'll go tell Chatterer the Red Squirrel about them."

But Chatterer laughed at Peter just as Sammy Jay had. "You've got a great dream, Peter. That's what the matter with you. Who ever heard of any one in the Green Forest who made tracks like those? Why, Bowser the Hound makes the biggest, the greatest tracks, marks, as you ought to know by this time. You've had a dream, Peter, and now you better run away and forget it."

It was the same way with Tommy Tit the Chickadee and Mrs. Grouse and Billy Mink, and every one else he told the story to. Every one laughed at him and no one believed him. Poor Peter grew quite miserable, for he knew what his eyes had seen, and it was dreadfully hard to be laughed at and have fun poked at him just because he insisted that he had seen those strange tracks.

THE TANGO---LESSON 6 AN INTERLUDE---BY Mlle. ANNA PAVLOVA

THE INTERLUDE: A STEP LEADING TO A CHANGE OF POSITIONS.

A Balancing Step to Fill in the Awkward Moment Between Two Tango Figures

(This is one of a series of articles especially written for this newspaper by Mlle. Anna Pavlova, the greatest living premiere danseuse, who has posed with her dancing partner, Lawrence Novikoff, for each figure. The dances to be explained and illustrated are those now in vogue in society ball rooms.)

In the tango, as in all modern ball room dances, variety of steps, positions and figures all combine in providing effective eyes to spectators and relief to those participating in a dance. This particular branch of the art has increased in popularity as much because of its possibilities as for any other reason.

One of the positions devised to meet tango conditions is the interlude, made clear to the eye in the accompanying photograph. It is what some persons might term a "balance" and is one of the simplest of tango positions.

The satisfying factor in this interlude is that it may be frequently employed under many sets of dancing circumstances. Whether the partners are proceeding in regulation position—with the man at the left of the lady—or in reverse, which is exactly the opposite, matters little so far as the interlude goes.

To introduce it at unexpected moments affords a pleasing visual contrast to those who may be looking on, not to mention the keen enjoyment of the partner who suggests its use and the one to whom its introduction comes more or less as a surprise.

I doubt if any special counsel is needed as to the proper times for using upon the interlude. In other words, the dancer cannot seriously offend by overdoing it, for the excellent reason that both before and after it is utilized there must be a change of positions, which affords a measure of variety.

The chief charm of the interlude depends upon the degree of finish with which it is performed. To hurry it or to delay it means to spoil its beauty to the eyes of the spectators and delight may be brought to the partners.

To my mind the quality of deliberation should prevail in this step, deliberation that is perfectly timed to the rhythm of the music. Moving from whatever position desired, the man faces his lady and takes with his right hand her left, at the same time carrying the weight of his body on his left leg and lifting the right foot from the floor, the toe pointing downward. As is shown in the photographic illustration, the lady moves similarly with the opposite hand and foot.

Oldest Baraca Braves Snowstorm at 91 to Meet With His Class

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

DALTON, Ga., March 9.—The Baraca class of the First Baptist church is claiming the distinction of having the oldest member of a Baraca class in the United States, in J. A. Alverson, aged ninety-one years.

Mr. Alverson lives three miles distant from the church, but is a regular attendant. Yesterday, with the monotony of his walk broken by a blinding snowstorm, he was found in his accustomed place when the class assembled.

In addition to this distinction, Mr. Alverson is one of the very few living "forty-niners." When the gold rush was on in California he hastened to the gold fields, and, although failing to strike it rich, brought back a fair-sized bag of gold dust.

He is a member of the Joseph E. Johnston camp, United Confederate Veterans, having served throughout the Civil war in the presence of the southland.

DEMONSTRATOR BEGINS WORK IN BUTTS COUNTY

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

JACKSON, Ga., March 9.—H. L. Worsham, who has been appointed as demonstration agent in Butts county, is now busy at his duties. Mr. Worsham has already met a large number of the people of the county and is planning to visit the various schools of the county at an early date. Next week he will be assisted by S. M. Cowd, district manager of the co-operative demonstration work in this district, and together with County School Superintendent C. S. Maddox they will visit the various county schools next Thursday and Friday.

Miss Beesie Waldrop, local agent for the Girls' Canning clubs, is also arranging her work, and Butts county farmers are starting out on the new year with a determination to learn something about the latest methods of farming.

The Fulton county executive committee, like others, erred in supposing the county school superintendent must be elected this year.

Attorney General Felder rules as follows: "Under the act of the general assembly passed in 1912 (acts 1912, page 180), the term of office of the county superintendents of schools was made to begin on the first day of January, 1913, and end on the first day of January, 1917. It will be in order, therefore, to elect successors to the incumbents at the general state election to be held in 1916."

Charging that his wife was so injured by plaster falling on her head that she is now unable to do her household work, E. S. Skipper filed suit Saturday morning for $5,000 damages against Mrs. Elizabeth J. Mitchell, the owner of 19 McDaniel street. Mrs. Skipper also filed suit for $5,000 against Mrs. Mitchell on the same grounds.

The house is run as a boarding house by Mrs. Blankenship, says the suit, which alleges that on August 2, 1913, loose plaster fell on Mrs. Skipper's head with such force as to knock her unconscious and give her concussion of the brain.

OUR ASTROLOGER

"The stars incline, but do not compel."

HOROSCOPE FOR TUESDAY, MARCH 10, 1914.

Free from starry guide in peace this day abide.

Those who read the stars for this day interpret their message as devoid of any decided prognostication for good or ill. It is a time for the pursuit of routine work and not for initiative or speculation.

Neptune sends a faint influence for good, from which poets, musicians and writers should derive benefit.

It is a favorable day for beginning ocean voyages. Shipping interests should prosper fairly well.

Increased mortality among women is prognosticated. In the next few weeks death of prominent persons will be numerous. Those who were born under the Sun, Moon, Mars or Saturn held the twenty-first degree of Virgo will be especially vulnerable to disease.

Reforms in social customs will interest the public. Banquets to public men will be discouraged and fewer entertainments for women will be given, the seers declare.

There is a prophecy that Chicago will attract worldwide attention by an art movement.

Colleges are subject to a rule, which promises increased prosperity for them, but the stars indicate radical changes in standards of education. A professor will start a movement curtailing the privileges of women in state institutions. The death of the president of a leading university is foreshadowed.

A plague of insects will cause losses to farmers in the west, the seers declare.

In the southern states industrial conditions will greatly improve during the spring and summer, and women will bring about many important changes which concern the welfare of workers in mills and other places.

Trouble for Ireland is read in the conjunction of Jupiter with Uranus in Aquarius. As the conjoined planets are close to the lower meridian of Washington seismic disturbances may take place in the south and startling incidents may affect the federal government.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of domestic anxieties and increased expenses.

Children born on this day will be quick-witted and industrious, but they may be unfortunate. Girls should be guarded against possible marriage with a drunkard.

THE EVENING STORY

(Copyright, 1914, by W. Werner.)

Harriet Hess was shaking a rug at her back door. It was worn down to the warp, for it lay before the sitting room door and every one of the eight feet of her men folks had to tread upon it before they could get in.

Harriet felt this morning she was worn out. It seemed to need more strength than she had to shake the rug. And when she thought that she must go on shaking it until either she or it gave out utterly a curious despair seized her. She had an idea that the old rug would outlast her. Sighing heavily, she flung it aside and sank down on the door step and let her eyes go a-gazing where they would.

What she saw was what she had seen each time she opened her back door for the space of twenty-eight years. There was the path wriggling toward the garden, gathered now, for the frosts had come early, the pear tree and the apple tree and the reluctantly growing grapevine which while she had called her own, set in a row of similar houses. This and no more, against a background of other people's buildings. If she had turned the other way she would have seen nothing better, for the house she lived in was gray and shabby, set in a row of similar houses. Only poor folk and renters lived on East street. Harriet was no renter, but she was poor enough, heaven knew!

Sometimes her poverty got up and snarled in her face. There was no stir in her life. She washed dishes, swept, made beds, cooked, ironed and mended. Her task waited unflinchingly for a good while she had called her own, set in a row of similar houses. Only poor folk and renters lived on East street. Harriet was no renter, but she was poor enough, heaven knew!

She wondered if she meant very much to anybody, even to her husband and her three sons. There had always been a good deal of "pulling and hauling" between them. First she had wanted Jake to be ambitious and get ahead. But Jake would only work when he was hungry, and thus have ample time in which to go astraying with his gun or with his fistpots. The boys were like him, joyous, irresponsible young fellows. They worked, but their money escaped their hands like water. They would never accumulate. They had gone this morning by an early train to the city, where a great game of ball was to be played. Jake had no money, so he had taken his fistpots and gone to seek the river. She had put up a "bite" for his dinner, knowing that he would not return until dark. So she was left alone with the house and her work and her own dreary thoughts.

A maple leaf drifted down upon her head that lay listless in her lap. Its touch aroused her. She took the leaf and examined it curiously. Nature had done her best for it and the frost had finished the job. Harriet half smiled as she looked at it. It was many years since she had remembered those far-off days of her young girlhood, when she had gone into the woods after maple leaves. It seemed to her that she could smell the fragrance of the woods and that she would give anything to be back there and with her girlhood for one hour.

"I could go on then—real brave" she said to herself. "I could start right in where I am now and go on real brave."

With this leaf in her hand she felt a strange yearning after more. She put it to her nose and the tang of frost and free air was still perceptible. She looked up at the sky. She was amazed to find it blue and deep. Actually the sun was shining in all its glory.

"It's a fine day," she murmured. "The woods must be beautiful. How I'd like to see them! Seems like they'd rest one and hearten me. My men folks have gone on a holiday. I ain't had a holiday in twenty-eight years." She caught her breath in a little gasp of astonishment. "My sakes, a piece of machinery would not run that long without going to pieces. They have to rest machinery. I ain't never rested except when I set in church, and that ain't often, for the men folks always like a good Sunday dinner."

She got up. She still had the leaf in her fingers, but she stuck it in the

I ain't had a holiday in twenty-eight years." She caught her breath in a little gasp of astonishment. "My sakes, a piece of machinery would not run that long without going to pieces. They have to rest machinery. I ain't never rested except when I set in church, and that ain't often, for the men folks always like a good Sunday dinner."

She got up. She still had the leaf in her fingers, but she stuck it in the

her three sons. There had always been a good deal of "pulling and hauling" between them. First she had wanted Jake to be ambitious and get ahead. But Jake would only work when he was hungry, and thus have ample time in which to go astraying with his gun or with his fistpots. The boys were like him, joyous, irresponsible young fellows. They worked, but their money escaped their hands like water. They bosom of her dress and pulled off her apron. Then, hallooed, she went like a child down the lane.

East street was on the edge of the town. At its extremity the sidewalk ceased and the road began. Harriet walked fast. She was going to get back something she had lost and, incidentally, to be free herself. She was a machine no longer, nor was she a disappointed mother, a weary wife, a worn-out woman. She was simply a human creature returning by the lost trail of nature and interest in living to herself.

She came at last to the woods, and they were all that she remembered—vast, yellow, sweet and full of winnowing whistlings. They called her in a thousand voices; they flung their gold in handfuls to entice her. For a moment Harriet stood looking up at them with her hands clasped, then slowly she moved forward and put her arms about a young beech and leaned upon it as if she found in it a true support for her weary and weak knees. She did not weep, but she found all the comfort and relief that tears would have brought her.

Presently she moved on again, and, finding a rock upholstered with lichen and encircled by braked, she sat down upon it. It was all so still and peaceful, yet she felt vivid with secret life. In the midst of it all she was a strange figure, but she did not think of that. She only thought that she was happier and nearer being at ease in soul and body than she had been in years.

Down the road from town in a cloud of dust came a black car with a woman in white linen, with a scarlet tie, all her uncovered hair flying loose and bright about her tanned, radiant face. The car swept toward the woods and into them.

Harriet scarcely heard it until it was close upon her. Then she turned in amazement. As she started the girl made a swift pass or two with her hand and the car stopped.

"Hello!" said the girl. She sat smiling at Harriet in such a friendly way that Harriet smiled back.

"Where did you come from?" Harriet asked.

The girl laughed and tossed a yellow leaf off her pretty hair. "From town," she said. "This is my car, and I'm going all the way to Stanforth now. It's a short cut through these woods. And, anyway, I love them."

"I never rode in one of them," said Harriet slowly, viewing the black car. "Didn't you?" cried the girl. "Well, now! You better get in here beside me and I'll give you a spin. I'll take you all the way to Stanforth if you'll let me."

"My sakes!" Harriet gasped. "You don't mean it! Nothing so beautiful as that has ever happened to me, and I know it can't now."

"I do mean it," urged the girl. "Come, jump in."

Harriet crawled in. She put her hand to her hair. "I ain't got no hat. And my dress—" she mumbled.

The girl laughed again. "I haven't any hat, either. But there's my coat. You can throw it around you."

Harriet crept into the loose silken thing, and the car started. It swept through the woods, gathering all the warm breezes to fan Harriet's rapt face and the girl's eager one. Harriet had not an idea by what way she was going to Stanforth, but she liked it. Yellow leaves caught in her gray hair and sprinkled her enveloping coat. She held her meek hands fast and waited.

It was a long way through the woods, and a still longer way through the open country. When the car struck the white level of the state road it bounded forward as if in joy. After two hours of headlong, joyous riding it dashed out upon a stretch of pavement. They were in Stanforth and Stanforth was a city.

Harriet never had seen Stanforth, though she had heard much of it. The car slipped through long streets crowded with traffic. At last it stopped before a great store.

"I've got to run in here a moment," announced the girl.

Harriet was left to watch, entranced, the kaleidoscope all about her. The girl came back with a parcel.

"It's only a pair of silk stockings of a particular shade I had to have for a dance tonight," she explained. "Now we'll seek a restaurant. I'm starved. Aren't you?"

In that gilded and mirrored palace Harriet ate such food as she never dreamed of and was served as if she had been eating it every day. The girl was a charming hostess. Her smile was provocative of a waiter's attention as her silver. Harriet had never been so waited upon in her life.

Gradually she was led to talk about herself. After all she had little to tell but that little—ah, the girl's blue eyes flashed with responsive tears as she heard.

There was still better than the luncheon awaiting Harriet, for after it they went to the theater. And there Harriet entered fairyland and dreamed in one. All that she had ever fancied or longed for glittered and danced on the stage before her for two enchanted hours.

It ended and she found herself back in the car beside the girl who was driving now for dear life through the warm late afternoon.

"I've got to get back for dinner and the dance," she cried, "but oh what a time we've had. You're the best comrade I ever took out."

"I guess I'm just a foolish old woman, but this is the first time I've remembered it since I got into them woods," Harriet answered.

After all she was not sorry when the car left her at her own door. She went in by the way she had left. Her apron and the rug lay there. She p for glittered and danced on the stage before her for two enchanted hours.

She seemed to have been away years instead of hours to have had an unlimited vacation to have come back a renewed spirit and a fresh grasp on the realities of life. Monotony was over forever. Had she not memories? And such memories! And her wonderful girl playmate had promised not to forget her. Now at last life wore a smile when Harriet Hess looked into its face. And knowing what she did she could smile her turn.

American Tennis Players Have Hard Fight in Davis Cup Play

LITTLE PAL--HE FINDS OPTIMISM HAS LIMITS

Davis Cup Will Likely Develop Brilliant Play

American Tennis Cracks Must Put Up Great Game to Retain Laurels Against Foreign Challengers - World's Best Players Will Compete in Great Matches

NEW YORK, March 9.—With dates for the Davis cup international tennis tournament, matches drawing nearer it is possible to estimate the task that confronts the United States players if they successfully defend the trophy retained in England last season. With the exception of South Africa, all eight countries that entered the tournament in 1912 will be represented this year. The challenging nations comprise the British Isles, France, Germany, Canada, Australasia and Belgium. The United States as defender of the cup stand out and will play the team which comes through in the challenge round August 13, 14 and 15.

Since a majority of these nations will nominate about the same players who competed for the trophy in 1912, the results of the matches a year ago form an excellent basis for forecasting the outcome of the preliminary ties.

In the upper half of the draw, Canada and Australasia meet in the first round with Germany drawing a bye. In the lower half Belgium and the British Isles are opposed in the initial round, with France standing out to meet the winner. With Australasia and the British Isles separated by the halves of the draw it is reasonable to presume that these two countries will come through the preliminary rounds and meet in the final for the right to play the defending team.

In the first round of 1913 play Germany defeated France for the four matches to one. United States defeated Australasia four matches to one, and Canada defeated South Africa three matches to one, while Belgium drew a bye. In the second round United States defeated Germany five matches to one and Canada defeated Belgium by a similar score. In the final round the United States won in straight matches from Canada and the defeated British Isles, the defenders, three matches to two. These results would appear to indicate that Australasia, even represented by the 1912 team, would have little difficulty in defeating Canada and Germany, while the British Isles should eliminate both Belgium and France in the lower half.

This would bring Australasia and the British Isles to the final where, under last year's conditions, the teams would be well matched, judged on the basis of the results against the United States team.

The Australasian team for the coming tournament will comprise A. F. Wilding, the conqueror of Maurice McLoughlin; Norman E. Brookes, the equal of Wilding when he ceased to play two years ago; Stanley Douse and J. W. Dunlop. In the general world's tennis rankings Wilding and Brookes are always rated among the first three, while Douse and Dunlop seldom rose above eighth place. The English players, J. C. Parke, C. P. Dixon and H. Roper Barrett also rank with the leading players of the world, sharing these honors with McLoughlin and R. Morris Williams, of the United States team.

According to the tentative plans of the entering countries, British Isles, France and Belgium will play their ties abroad, Canada, Australasia and Germany will hold their elimination series in this country. Assuming, therefore, that Australasia and the British Isles meet in the final round, the test match will be played in the United States, followed by the challenge round at New York, Boston or Newport on August 13, 14 and 15. This will necessitate the presence in this country of some of the most famous of foreign players.

The United States will witness one of the greatest gatherings of world famous tennis players in many years.

Boys' High Nine Plays Riverside

The first game of the Boys' High 1914 baseball team will be played Saturday afternoon when the team journeys up to Gainesville, Ga., to play the strong Riverside nine.

Boys' High has scheduled three games with Riverside this year, two of them to be played in Gainesville and the other in Atlanta. Heretofore only one or two games have been played by these two teams, and usually at Gainesville, and Boys' High wants to play this bunch in Atlanta and try to cop from it, thing they have not done in many moons.

Boys' High has been practicing off and on for over two weeks now, and with the assistance of White as their coach, they have gotten together a good team and will play Riverside a good game.

McGraw Leaves For Marlin Camp

NEW YORK, March 9.—Six members of the New York National league team, headed by Manager John J. McGraw, left Sunday for Marlin, Tex., to join the main body of Giants in the training camp there. Besides McGraw, four other members of the squad were returning world tourists—Larry Doyle, Fred Merkle, Jim Thorpe and Mike Donlin. The other was R. I. Cotten, a catcher.

SECOND BASEMAN CUTSHAW ADVISES WORK FOR RECRUITS

Cutshaw.

BY HUGH S. FULLERTON.

AUGUSTA, Ga., March 9.—Cutshaw, Brooklyn's second baseman, one of the cleverest and fastest of the younger generation, has some ideas as to how baseball is to be played. In his first season at Brooklyn he started just eighteen double plays during the entire year. Last year he led the National league in a number of double plays in which he figured, and he started eighteen more than did Evers, his closest competitor. I asked Cutshaw about it.

"I look at it this way," he said.

STEAMBOAT FLANAGAN JOINS; REPORTS TO MANAGER SMITH

S. S. "Steamboat" Flanagan, premier swatsmith of the Three-I league during the period in which baseball last flourished in this section, hove into the local port Monday, and when Bill Smith yelled out to the bunch at morning practice to "Get a little pep," the big side-wheeler was among those who trotted out on the job.

Flanagan, it may be added, proceeded to run true to advance dope. From past reports, he was due to be a big strapping fellow, to whom winging 'em in from deep center, or slamming the ball over the palisades ought to prove duck soup. Well, he didn't hit any over the fence at Ponce de Leon—none of them came near, you see—but he did walk up to that platter in batting practice and hook 'em on the nose in the latest approved fashion. He tore open a nice natural swelling, with lots of drive behind it, and if he doesn't do some heavy sticking in these parts his preliminary warm-up is a dead sure ringer. Also, when he dared cut loose, he fired them in from the outfield in great shape.

The arrival of Flanagan leaves only a few to report. Joe Dunn is expected in at any time, as is Henry Elbel. Jap Efrd will get here in a few days. Jennings has asked to be allowed to report the latter part of May and has been informed that it will be come on now, or "Baseball is more a matter of hard, steady work and much thought than it is of any special ability. Any young man of average speed and strength can become a good ball player if he is willing to give enough thought and time to it and work hard.

"When I came on from the coast I was told by Coast league managers that I would not make good. But I studied the other clubs, watching each batter and fielder and trying to figure out their weaknesses or strengths. Of course, as a rookie, I couldn't say anything or offer any advice, but it was helping me.

By seeing how fellows like Evers and Eddie Collins did it and by hard work and practice I learned to do it pretty well. That may account for the larger number of double plays that I got into last year.

"A fellow in baseball ought to study his business just as any successful business man studies his. That is what counts."

Quite a load of advice from one so young in the major leagues. But it goes to show why Cutshaw is considered the most improved youngster in the National league. Also to prove that what he says about studying the game is true.

Alas, Poor Nick!

Nick Cullop, the Nap pitcher, is in mourning.

"If only I had known it!" he wailed, "if only I had known it I'd have jumped to the Feds."

"What's that?" demanded Manager Joe Birmingham.

"If I had known Moseley was going to jump I'd have jumped too. I only made two hits last season and both of them off him. And now he has jumped and taken my batting average with him."

Large Entry List For Bowling Congress

BUFFALO, N. Y., March 9.—The thirtieth annual international tournament of American Bowling congress opened today with an entry list exceeded only twice in the history of the organization.

Terry Nelson Meets McMahon

The management of the Columbia theater has billed a prize match for Wednesday night when Terry Nelson, the Greek lightweight, tackles Jack McMahon, of Chicago, in a scheduled ten-round bout. The scrap will be the main bout of an all-star card that should give the fans a good night's entertainment.

Nelson has fought here before and needs no introduction to local fans. He has fought such boys as Jake Abel, Frank Whitney, Jack White, Walter Little, Joe Sherman, Yankee Schwartz, and other tough ringmen. He has just arrived here from a hard campaign in Jacksonville, where he bested Jack Sentell in a twenty-round scrap and also defeated Patsy Keller.

Two other good bouts are also on the card, meaning that fans will see twenty rounds of good boxing. Kid Brown, the tough Greek bantam, is scheduled to box Young Goldman and these boys should put up a great battle. Brown recently gave Kid Young a tough battle and is out to prove that he is entitled to another chance at the newsboy championship.

Feds Reiterate Threat of War

President Gilmore Announces That Henceforth They Will Disregard All Contracts Made by Organization

CHICAGO, March 9.—President Gilmore last night reiterated his declaration of war against the American and National leagues. "The policy of respecting the contracts of organized leagues in the search for players is a thing of the past," he said. Gilmore announced that henceforth the league would make overtures to such players as it wished, regardless of their standing with organized ball.

He also notified E. E. Gates, of Indianapolis, counsel for the league, to begin suit in the federal courts against the Philadelphia National club in an attempt to gain redress in the Killifer case.

William Killifer, a catcher, signed a contract with the Chicago Federal league club and later ignored it, joining the Philadelphia club at its Virginia training camp.

Attorney Authorized To Enter Suit

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., March 9.—E. E. Gates, counsel for the Federal league last night was instructed by President Gilmore to begin injunction proceedings against William Killifer immediately. Mr. Gates said the petition would be filed as soon as completed in the federal court of the district in which Killifer was located.

Perdue Reports At Macon Camp

MACON, Ga., March 9.—Players Sweeney, Perdue and Whaling arrived here last night at 5 o'clock from Hot Springs, and joined the Boston National league training camp.

Sweeney, who figured in the original deal whereby Johnny Evers was transferred from Chicago to Boston, stated that he wanted to remain with Stallings' team. It is believed here that Sweeney will succeed Smith at first base, barring accident.

Sewanee Tigers Start Practice

SEWANEE, Tenn., March 9.—Practice for the coming baseball season has been on since last Friday at Sewanee, in the university gymnasium, as the weather conditions will not permit of outdoor practice as yet. Friday all prospective players were ordered out for the initial practice, and about ten men showed up to begin work. Among these were Hammond, one of last year's hurlers, and "Fat" Dinkins, the crack little catcher, who was kept busy handling the various candidates.

Among the number who are essaying to pitch for the first time are Reuben Parker, Thomas, Lannon and Walker. These men have all played prep baseball, but have yet to prove their mettle among college circles. "Pinkie" McGowdin, the captain, is working hard to have everything in readiness for the first practice out of doors, which will be called as soon as the diamond is gotten in the proper condition.

The schedule follows:

March 27, Morgan school, at Sewanee.

THE SPORTLIGHT BY GRANTLAND RICE

(Dedicated this time to a party of eminent tourists who have whaled the pill from Douglas, Ariz., on around to Tokio, Sidney, Cairo, Rome, Paris and London into New York harbor.)

The Long Sleep is over, the nation is waking.
The Dead epoch fades and the live one is back;
The old earth rebounds with a quiver and quacking,
And high flies the mach as they whirl down the track.
The atmosphere reels—and it isn't the comet—
The sea is a-whirl with the stir of the day,
And Federal Leaguers and other intriguers
Are reeling along with the kale they will pay.

CHORUS.
For Commy and Cal and McGraw again
Are back to the umpire's law again—
Back to the old fatigues;
To the land of the brave and the poor white slave,
To the Income Tax and the Mexican race,
And eke to the Federal League.

The dead year is past and the live one beginning.
As on to the frolic we move in a stream;
For now comes the revelry back to its inning
Where pallid existence moves out from its dream;
The kale-laden bustle, the rattle and hustle,
The fade singing chorus of "Let us, MacDuff!"
The clash at the dock, where the dough leads the tussle,
And damned be the magnate who first cries "Enough!"

CHORUS.
For Commy and Cal and McGraw again
Are back to the wild March thaw again—
Back to the old intrigue;
To wear and tear of the Grizzly Bear,
To the Eva Tanguay and "Don't Care"—
And eke to the Federal League.

There have been moments when in our imagination we had dreams of taking a trip around the world. But not in the wildest or most piercing phantasmagoria of our mental make-up have we been able to dream of such a tour coming to an end at dock-side with three rival establishments pleading with us to accept all the bullion we could take away in a truck.

THE RECEPTION COMMITTEE.

The wonderful reception planned for the incoming tourists, especially Messrs. Speaker, Crawford, Magee, Doolan and Wingo, was announced Friday, as follows, or thereabouts:

1. Detachment A, headed by Messrs. Gilmore, Ward and Weeghman, driving a four-horse truck containing 4,000,000 in bank notes, two tons of gold bullion and a mortgage on the fourteen leading bakeries of America, including the North Side and the Bronx.

2. Detachment B, headed by Organized Baseball, with three vanloads of $20 bills and two million in loose change.

3. Detachment C, composed of pop-eyed fans, who would like to lamp the returning heroes, but who are unable to look over the dough bags thrown high against the March heavens.

The arrival of the tourists and the assembling of the Fed and Organized Baseball owners reminds us of one of the refrains attached to one of Wallace Irwin's Ballads of Chinatown, the refrain being, "How muchee you payee?"

NOT SPOFFING AT ALL.

Laying aside for the moment any natural levity aroused by the wild dash of Feds and O. B. to welcome the tourists home, the journey just completed has been one of the most notable ever engineered in the history of sport.

The "emphatic farmers," who stood at Lexington are supposed to have first "fired the shot heard round the world," but their echo was nothing compared to the series of two-base hits exploited around the fairly well known globe.

It was a wonderful trip—one deserving of widespread congratulation to Comiskey, McGraw and Callahan, who generated the epoch-making party.

Now that Pekin, Tokio, Melbourne, Cairo, Paris and London have been presented with baseball, we have no idea, as Colonel Goldberg might say, "what they are gonna do with it." But that isn't America's lookout. We have given the world its chance to know the thrill of a two-base hit when the score is tied—to know the saccharine sweetness of an umpire's blood when tasted raw and the abounding pleasure of bawling out a mutt who fans with the bases full. If they fail to embrace the occasion that certainly is their misfortune and not our fault. We've opened the gate and the road lies ahead.

HOWEVER—

On the other hand we shudder to think what will happen to the silver-winged dove of peace when one of the invaded countries imbued with the germ of our national pastime develops the first winter league and the first gathering of magnates. Innocent lands that so far have only known war, rapine, the turkey trot and the cholera may then rise against us and demand full restitution for the peace that we have robbed them from November to April. And who could blame them for inaugurating a wild assault upon our shores?

We are sorry that Ping Bodie did not make the trip, as we would esteem it much bliss to see a signed story by Mr. Bodie upon "The Decadence of the Roman Empire" or "The Importance of Asiatic Archaeology as Related to the More Acute Pragmatism of Japan!"

The worst that can happen to Tris Speaker and Sam Crawford is that they are physically unable to carry away the doubloons pressed upon them. Yes, it's sad ending for these two, either way.

McGraw, Comiskey and Callahan have now conquered the world—or that part of east, west, north and south of an ancestral community known as Philadelphia. But here rests the ultimate stymie—the Gibraltar of all baseball routes.

Manager Tinker Starts for Camp

CHICAGO, March 9.—Joseph Tinker, manager, and two score of ball players last night departed for Shreveport, La., to start the training season of the Chicago Federals. The special train carried in addition to the players, the trainer and others directly connected with the team, President Gilmore, of the Federal league, President Charles Weeghman and Vice President William Walker, of the local club, as well as a number of newspaper men.

Thirty athletes are expected to report at Shreveport and from them Tinker will select a team.

While there is a certain element still in favor of attempting an organization of the Western association, Larry Milon, who was one of the chief promoters, says there is no hope for it this year. W. C. Holliday, of Fort Worth, who also was interested, also voices the opinion that not enough interest can be aroused.

Dudley in Charge At Thomasville

Manager of Last Year's Pennant Winners Thinks He Has Good Chance to Repeat

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

THOMASVILLE, Ga., March 9.—Manager Dudley, of the Thomasville baseball team, has arrived to take up his work of getting the Hornets ready for the season of 1914, and he thinks the prospects are fine for another pennant winner for Thomasville.

Dudley states that he has enough of the old team of last year signed to form a splendid nucleus around which to build up a fine team with the young material on which he is banking for great things.

In the outfield Barnett and Wilkes, of the team of last year, have already been signed. In addition to these are W. B. Daniels, a semi-professional, coming from Savannah, and well recommended; Joe Telkon, of St. Louis, a fast left-hander and hard hitter; Hendricks, of Tusculooa, a semi-professional with a good record, and Walter Eblen, of St. Louis, who has played for three years in semi-professional city leagues and is strongly recommended by Theodore Breitenstein.

In the infield Mitchell Davenport, on first, and Red Murch, on second, will show up again, both having signed their contracts for 1914. Klump, who was with Jacksonville last year on third base, has signed a contract with the Hornets. He is regarded as one of the most promising youngsters in this section. Leach, of Tusculooa, who played last year in the Southeastern league; E. P. Caster, of Savannah, a semi-professional youngster, and Tom Scarboro, of Moultrie, have also signed.

Day and Roth, pitchers of last year, have both signed for the season. Cox, youngster of Birmingham; Branch, a north Georgia boy, and Tom Jones, hailing from Atlanta and a six-footer, are also on the signed list of try-outs.

There are contracts out for several more, Manager Dudley says, and he expects to land them shortly, as it is probable that he will want them all to report by March 25, when the grounds will be in perfect shape for practice to begin.

Prep League Notes

Baseball is now claiming the attention of all the local prep schools and all of them are practicing their candidates daily in anticipation of the coming season.

Boys' High has secured the services of F. M. White, a veteran baseball player and coach, as coach for their team this year. He has already assumed charge of the squad.

White comes well recommended to Boys' High from the Second District Agricultural school at Tifton, Ga. White coached this team several seasons ago and they won the state baseball championship.

White has been signed as an umpire in the Georgia-Alabama league this season, but as their season does not open until the latter part of April, he will into the part of April, he will have ample time to whip the B. H. S. team into shape.

Fifty men turned out when practice was held last Tuesday, and some very good material is out for the B. H. S. team.

Pitcher's place will be the hardest problem that the Boys' High team will have to solve and a good deal of time will be spent on this department by Coach White. Friddell and Warwick are the two most promising men so far untried by Boys' High.

Tech High has been practicing their candidates for over three weeks now and their athletes are in good shape for the coming season. Tech High should have a grand team this year, as they have some excellent material at the school.

Tech High will have probably the best pitching staff in the league this year with Watson, Parks and Smith. All three of these men are great pitchers and should have a great year this season.

Peacock-Fleet will have a great pitcher in Lyman Murphy, who is attending that school this year. Murphy is a pitcher that relies mostly on a smoky ball, and there is certainly a top of smoke on his fast one. Peacock-Fleet claims that they are going to have some baseball nine this year and will make the other teams hustle to nose them out.

Boys' High has uncorked a great little pitcher in Warwick, a southpaw. This lad pitched for the Crew street team last year and according to his past record he should make good in the prep league form the start.

Fourteen teams will be in the league this year and some great rivalry is sure to be exhibited when the teams meet.

FULLERTON FINDS HOPE IN DODGERS' TRAINING CAMP

BY HUGH S. FULLERTON.

AUGUSTA, Ga., March 9.—Brooklyn seems, at first glance, almost hopeless as a National league pennant contender. The surprise is to find the training camp of the Dodgers full of hope and enthusiasm and with a spirit that, existed in a Brooklyn team only once in the last decade, and that for a short time last year.

Probing more deeply into the make-up of the Dodgers, one is surprised to find that it has the framework of a pennant winning team. Given consistent pitching, a shortstop, and Brooklyn looms up as one of the pennant contenders. Man for man today (with pitchers eliminated), Brooklyn has a stronger team than the Giants.

The worst fault of the Brooklyn team has been the abnormal laziness or carelessness of its pitchers, and the same fault commenced to crop up almost before the team had landed in its training camp here. Much of this was due to careless management of Dahlen during the last few years. Dahlen did not compel the pitchers to do the holding that all winning pitchers should do.

Shortstop looks like the weakest spot in the team. Joe Tinker, lost by Ebbetts' tinkering, would have made the team look much stronger. Neither Egan nor Cutshaw can play short, and neither wants to try it—which makes it necessary to find a shortstop from the new material.

The catching department is fair, with no sign of additional strength. Much interest is felt of Ed Reulbach, the former Chicago star. Reulbach himself is full of confidence. He thinks a change to Brooklyn is just what he needed. This is mainly superstition. While with the Cubs, Reulbach always pitched his best, in Brooklyn. Given confidence in himself, Reulbach is a great pitcher.

Charlie Ebbetts cannot refrain from "helping" his manager and the results have been disastrous. Perhaps this has been responsible in large part for the seeming carelessness of his managers. The fact remains that Dahlen was careless in many respects.

Wilbur Robinson is a different type. Robby was one of the leaders of the old Baltimore Orioles—but of a different type from McGraw and Jennings. "Robby" was the jollier and the peacemaker, while the others were fighters. He was given credit with furnishing much of the brains of that famous old organization. For two years, he has been assisting McGraw and he has acquired some of McGraw's best "stuff."

The team looks much more promising than it did last season. But its strongest advantage is that it no longer is a "joke" club. It is hopeful—not confident—merely hopeful—and hope and hustle carries a club a long way.

FULLERTON'S GOSSIP

BY FULLERTON.

Bruce Hartford, the Chicago boy who is trying for a steady infield job on the Naps, is the champion piano player of the team. During the blizzard he took off eight pounds playing the piano. Six of the eight came off the piano.

Doc Johnston is challenger for the pocket pool Marathon champion. He played 172 games of pool in 10 hours 15 minutes.

Among the towns made famous by being the homes of the Cleveland players are Minooka, Pa.; Fountain City, Wis.; Mechanics Grove, Pa.; Chesham, Wash.; Sardis, Miss.; Chilhowie, Va.; Sandy Lake, Pa., and Easley, S. C.

Jack Levilvelt has a box fighter who, he thinks, is the coming bantamweight champion. The boy is Maurice Flynn of Chicago, a 122 pounder.

All is saved. Art Fromme has reported to the Giants.

Frank Chance announces he is thoroughly satisfied with the outlook. Well, at Sunday school they advised us always to look upward.

"Pittsburg Millionaire" is rather an indefinite description of the Feds' backer. They're all millionaires up there.

Among those rejoicing over the advent of the Feds are the recruits. The majors are afraid to let them go.

The old "Show Me" league is to be revived, giving Lee Garvin one more in which to play.

How that offer for Mathewson did grow after he turned it down!

Packey McFarland evidently thought the Wisconsin boxing board was composed of referees, and stayed away.

Ritchie Is Still Odds-on Choice

Wolgast's "Come Back" and Champion's Overconfidence Fail to Change Trend of Betting

MILWAUKEE, March 9.—Rejuvenation of Ad Wolgast and reported overconfidence of Willie Ritchie have failed to detract Ritchie as favorite in betting for their ten-round bout here Thursday night. Ritchie will defend his title of lightweight champion against the man from whom he won it.

Wolgast's recent defeat of Rivers, the Mexican boxer, and other indications that he had "come back" has made promoters of the bout confident he would put up a great fight to regain his laurels. The public generally, however, does not share in this belief.

It took a guarantee of $10,000 to induce Ritchie to re-enter the ring. He has been stunning numerous boxers who aspired to a chance at his title, holding off for "big money." This he succeeded in getting for the Milwaukee club has promised him. It is said, an alternative of 10 per cent of the gate receipts.

Both men are training in Chicago.

Kleinow Reported

MONTGOMERY, Ala., March 7.—Catcher Kleinow, sometime major leaguer, reported to Manager Gilles of the Montgomery team tonight for spring training.

Gilles leaves Sunday night for Florida to sign two men, a pitcher and infielder, and possibly an outfielder.

Wheat—No possibly may have a little higher market today, but we see no basis at the moment for any sustained advance.

POULTRY, PIGEONS AND LIVE STOCK

Take Care of Your Little Chicks

In the care and management of little chicks they have to be watched very closely. Just as soon as you see that they are not thriving and developing evenly and uniformly as they should it is best to find out where the trouble is and correct it before it gets too far. In many lots of brooder chicks, often they are too crowded, and will stop growing. You can see a change in them, and when this state of affairs exists a person should not only change the food and separate them in smaller flocks, before they become weak or begin to die. A person can usually avoid a heavy loss if they are looked after in time. People often put these things off and let the little ones become weak before a change is made.

Little chicks should have a great variety of food, especially during the second and fourth weeks of their life. At this age they begin to take on a coat of feathers. It is a terrible drain on their system to grow these feathers, and unless they have sufficient food to furnish these elements to produce feathers the body will stop growing and they will get in such a weakened condition that many will die and not recover from the set back.

It is a good idea to keep before little chicks at this age at all times either a trough or hopper full of some kind of good mash feed, or bran, meat scraps and charcoal, as many little chickens are timid and when they are being fed do not get enough to eat and will live and keep growing if they have this nourishing food where they can get it at will prepared meat, and when it is mixed with a good quality of bran and a small amount of charcoal added it furnishes a good balance food for them. And, in addition to the grain food that they should have every two or three hours they will continue to grow and thrive on this feed when otherwise they would become weak and many would die simply for the want of something to strengthen their systems.

Most any of the commercial mash feeds that are fed to old chickens are good for little growing chickens, and should be kept before them most of the time.

Another important thing in the raising of little chickens is green food. So few people realize this. It should be given them regular every day and should be given in various ways. A lump of nice, tender, crimson clover, oats, blue grass, rye, a head of lettuce or a basket of finely chopped green. All of these things are very essential in the raising of little chicks. It keeps their systems cooled out and in good condition, and thousands of little chickens can be saved by being looked after at the proper time, and these little things looked after before they become weak and stop growing.

It is much easier to keep them thriving and growing than it is to attempt to build up a run down condition and add strength to their systems after they once become weak. It is almost impossible to do this. They should never be allowed to stop growing.

At present there are thousands of little chickens being hatched all over the country. A great many people have made a successful start and raised them. A large per cent cannot possibly be raised if they are kept crowded and in unclean quarters and not fed as they should be. Forty to fifty little chickens are as many as usually should be kept in a single brooder or with a single hen, unless it be in large, properly constructed brooder-houses with the right kind of heaters. Where people are prepared to do these things it is different, but the average person who is attempting to raise a few chickens at home will find they will raise a much larger per cent if they are never crowded and not over forty to fifty kept in a single brooder.

It is surprising how many little chickens there are already being raised around Atlanta, and what nice prospects some people have at present for a big per cent of profit out of their chickens.

Yours very truly,
